P.M. airport board hears from public on expansion

Mount Pocono Bureau
MOUNT POCONO — Mount Pocono Airport Authority members ducked under a crossfire of pro and con opinions during a public hearing on airport expansion and master plans Thursday night.

(Related story, page 14)

With 165 people and several airplanes jammed into a hanger at the Mount Pocono airport in Coolbaugh Township, authority members listened into late Thursday night to the public's opinion of its proposed future plans.

The hearing dealt with two issues, expansion of a crosswind runway and a 20-year master plan. A public hearing was not required for the master plan.

Immediately popping up during a question and answer period was the question of funding future expansion of the airport.

The master plan prepared for the airport authority outlines the eventual spending of over $6 million for expansion of runways and hanger areas.

The federal government is expected to pick up $3.5 million of the total cost with the remainder split between state and local sources, including the members of the authority and a pledge of $150,000 over a 10-year period from the county.

It is the county's share that has caused the controversy over the airport's future, with several speakers calling for a public referendum on funding.

Clarence Henderson, a Paradise Township resident and member of the Concerned Citizens of Monroe County, one group opposing the county's share, called for a referendum to decide the county's $150,000 dole.

He also opposed expansion plans, saying trucking goods is easier and persons spending vacations in Pocono resorts can easily drive from New York City and Philadelphia.

"Monroe County's citizens are being exploited," Henderson said, getting a loud response from the portion of the crowd opposed.

One of the speakers favoring expansion of the airport was James Flannery, manager of the Wilkes-Barre-Scranton airport at Avoca.

"Right now you have an obsolete airport, fast passing from the scene," Flannery said. "It should be enlarged to handle general aviation, not just for the resorts, but for other diversified businesses in the community."

"People shouldn't flush down the drain a $4 million asset to the community," he added.

Several candidates for Monroe County commissioner were sprinkled through the crowd, with some voicing opposition to expansion plans the county's spending money for the airport.

Martha Preiss of Pocono Summit said she represented property owners in the vicinity of the airport. She said a survey of residents of the area around the facility has never been taken to gather their opinion on expansion.

Another area resident, Robert Bullock of Paradise Township, charged the airport is not being eroded by environmental impacts, but by special interests. He supports the airport, but opposes expansion.

The Commerce Department reported the second consecutive monthly gain in personal income and a record surplus in cash in foreign transactions.

The Fed said industrial production dropped a relatively modest 0.4 per cent last month following a drop of 1.3 per cent in March. It was the smallest slide since last August.

A 13 per cent increase in auto production offset other losses to increase production of consumer goods by 1 per cent. But output of business equipment, which has dropped 11 per cent since September, fell another 1.4 per cent to account for the overall monthly decline in the Fed's index.

Simon told a Conference Board meeting that recent government yardsticks of the economy provide overwhelming evidence "that we are near or at the bottom of the current recession and from here on the situation should be improving. The worst of the recession is thus behind us."

But, he said, "we must resist the temptations of highly stimulative fiscal and monetary policies" that would trigger a new round of high inflation.

The Commerce Department said the U.S. balance of payments as measured by cash transactions recorded a surplus of $2.62 billion from January through March.

In a late session Wednesday, the House authorized a resettlement program with a ceiling of $507 million, the exact amount requested by President Ford. However it then passed an appropriation bill providing only $405 million for the program. The remaining $102 million could be appropriated later if necessary.

The Senate version presented by its Foreign Relations and Appropriations Committees would hold both authorization and appropriation to $405 million. The difference would have to be resolved in a House-Senate conference.

Farmer fatally injured in Jersey tractor accident

COLUMBIA, N. J. — A 51-year-old New Jersey farmer died Wednesday night, less than four hours after he was crushed underneath his tractor while plowing near Columbia, N. J.

John J. Gabrys, of Columbia, N. J., died at 6:30 p.m. in the General Hospital of Monroe County, East Stroudsburg after being brought in from the Knowlton Township field.

State police at Blairstown said Gabrys was preparing the field for spring planting when his 1955 tractor started down an incline and tipped over, trapping him underneath.

After being trapped underneath the tractor, he was extricated by Tpr. Preston Fairland and personnel from Hummels Garage, Columbia.

According to police, Gabrys suffered a crushed chest and head injuries. Monroe County Coroner Daniel G. Warner said Thursday an autopsy will be performed today. He has preliminarily labeled it "an accidental death."

Marine force rescued after saving ship, crew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Battle of Koh Tang Island, to save a pirated American merchant ship and its crew, ended Thursday with the daring nighttime rescue of about 160 Marines from the beach where they braved almost 15 hours of Communist gunfire.

Navy and Air Force helicopters — rebuffed by a barrage of fire from Khmer Rouge soldiers on the island during their first rescue attempt before dark — picked the Marines off the beach after attacks by A6 jettifighters and the guns of Navy destroyers quieted the Communist forces.

Defense Department sources said one Marine was known dead, one airman was missing and believed dead, and many Marines were wounded in the island battle 30 miles off the Cambodian coast.

The sources could not rule out the possibility that others were missing since the Marine force was scattered all over the Pacific after the evacuation but before a man by man accounting could be made. A precise accounting was expected today. Two destroyers remain behind circling the island in case there were stragglers.

One of the first choppers to reach the island was hit and blown in two as it crash landed. A Marine major radioed that 14 of his men were missing in the crash but officials later said the men had escaped out the other side of the helicopter.

The Marines landed on Koh Tang Wednesday as part of a successful U.S. military "firm and measured response" to force Cambodia to give up the Mayaguez and its 39 crewmen.

There were other elements in the operation — an air strike on Ream airfield near the mainland of the Cambodian port city of Kompong Som, and an "old-time seaborning" of the Mayaguez itself — but the battle of Koh Tang was the most dramatic and most dangerous.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger called the entire operation a "laudible success" and said it represented, above and beyond the freeing of the Mayaguez, "a much needed and timely reaffirmation of the freedom of the seas and peaceful transit."

Defense Department sources said the operation was planned so fast it never even got a code name. They said secret cables between military commanders referred to it as "the Mayaguez incident" or "this thing we're working on" or — most often — "the Cambodian 'boarding of a U.S. flag ship.'"

The attack got under way at 5:45 p.m. EDT Wednesday when the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon, acting on direct orders from President Ford, ordered the initiation of an assault they had started planning only two and a half days earlier.

About 200 Marines were immediately loaded aboard 11 Air Force Jolly Green Giant helicopters at U-Tapao Air Base in Thailand, the Defense Department said. The Pentagon has never officially acknowledged the presence of a total force 1,100 Marines at U-Tapao because the Thai government protested the Marines coming in.

By 7 p.m., three of the helicopters were hovering over the destroyer USS Holt, dropping 48 Marines onto the destroyer's deck in preparation for boarding the Mayaguez.

Pentagon officials said they fully expected to find some of the Mayaguez crew still aboard the ship and the rest held captive on the island in some abandoned buildings — variously described as fishermen's huts and military barracks — directly across a narrow neck of land from where the Marines landed.

Ford acted under powers of office

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, complying with the 1973 War Powers Act, informed Congress in writing Thursday that U.S. forces had successfully recaptured the American freighter Mayaguez and rescued its crew.

But he did not mention the act's requirement that he consult by seeking the opinion of congressional leaders before ordering such military action. He asserted that he had acted — not under the War Powers Act — but through his constitutional authority as commander-in-chief.

After ending the most serious international crisis of his presidency, Ford told the Shah of Iran during a welcoming ceremony Thursday: "The U.S. commitment to peace and progress for the world has remained firm."

Later, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that Ford told congressional leaders "I would never forgive myself" if he had not ordered the air strike against the Cambodian mainland.

Nessen said that in ordering the bombing of the airfield by U.S. fighter-bombers, Ford took into account the fact that there were 2,400 Cambodian troops stationed at the nearby port of Kompong Som.

The War Powers Act, which required that the President report on his action in writing within 48 hours, was intended to restore Congress' role in war-making after the Johnson administration cited the 1964 Tonkin Gulf Resolution as a "functional equivalent" of a declaration of war, obviating the need for further congressional endorsement of U.S. participation in Indochina hostilities.

Only a few express disappointment

Lawmakers praise Ford's actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawmakers from both parties Thursday praised President Ford's handling of the Mayaguez seizure, predicting it would enhance the image of the United States and the President in the eyes of other nations.

Only a few voices on Capitol Hill expressed disappointment that Ford chose to recapture the Cambodian-held American ship by force.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said the incidents called for a negotiated settlement. "The test of the strength and maturity of a superpower is better measured by its restraint in minor incidents rather than a demonstration of power the world already knows we have at our command," he said.

Both Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Rep. Michael Blouin, D-Iowa, questioned why Ford did not pursue a diplomatic solution and McGovern said the President should have consulted Congress before using troops against Cambodia.

But the prevailing mood in the House and Senate was expressed by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., who hoped that "in the eyes of the world this enhances confidence in the United States to react and react expeditiously."

And Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., echoed the words of many when he said that Ford "is a much bigger man around the world today than he's ever been in his life."

Democrats also praised Ford's action. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., gave the President "high marks"; Sen.

Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said the outcome "should be satisfying to all of us"; Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said Ford was "right to act the way he did," and House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill said it proved that Americans "don't intend to be blackjacked or pirated."

"Had we shown some fortitude such as this during the past 10 years," said Rep. Carroll Hubbard, D-Ky., "we could have easily won the war in Vietnam and avoided the embarrassment of the Pueblo hijacking by the North Koreans in 1968."

Sens. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., and James L. Buckley, C-R-N.Y., who previously called on Ford to act forcibly, were elated.

Buckley said the attack "serves notice on would-be pirates that they will not be able to escape from such a venture without suffering serious losses" and Goldwater said he was grateful Ford showed enough "guts to do what he should have done."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Ford proved to be a "strong and responsive President ... despite the fears of some of the fainthearted and timid."

Blouin, however, suggested that the Mayaguez could have been recovered without any loss of American lives. "I think the sincerity of our diplomatic efforts can be questioned when we did not even give the United Nations enough time to work out a peaceful solution," he said.

Consumer agency bill jumps hurdle in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a victory for Ralph Nader and the movement he helped create, the Senate Thursday ended four years of debate by passing legislation to establish a consumer protection agency.

The final vote on passage was 61 to 28. It came after the Senate rejected 66 to 24 a move by Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., to kill the whole bill.

The bill went to the House where backers, waiting to see the final Senate product, were ready to introduce similar legislation for which they predicted speedy approval.

President Ford is believed leaning toward a veto as part of his holddown on government spending. But supporters of the agency said they thought the strength it drew in Congress may dissuade him, or at least make an override possible if a veto comes.

The legislation would create a new agency — to be called the Agency for Consumer Advocacy — at a cost of $53.5 million over the next three years.

It would give official status and sanction to a job Nader and other consumer advocates now try to do outside the government — speak up in policy-making circles for citizens they feel are not as well represented as corporations, labor unions and other highly organized special interest groups.

Its critics, especially the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers, say it would enlarge the already bulging federal bureaucracy and create chaos in the regulatory machinery.

As passed by the Senate, certain activities would be exempted from the agency's powers — broadcast license renewals and other matters, including strikes and federal proceedings affecting farmers and ranchers.

Backers of the idea argued its real value would be in saving the consumer money — by challenging airline ticket price hikes when they are considered by the Civil Aeronautics Board, for example, or automatically asking the courts to review regulations imposing higher consumer prices.

The agency would also be able to demand from other than small businesses complete accountings to justify claims they make when asking the government for changes in regulations — such as a change in a safety rule or a utility seeking a price hike.

What's news

Another art heist

MILAN, Italy — Masked gunmen over-powered guards Thursday and carted off 38 paintings and drawings worth an estimated $6 million from Milan's Modern Art Gallery which just a month ago recovered art treasures stolen from the same collection earlier this year, police said. Police said 20 of the missing works were among the 28 impressionist and post-impressionist paintings valued at $3 million which were stolen from the gallery Feb. 17. All 28 were recovered undamaged April 6 during a police raid on a suspect apartment in Milan. Stolen in Thursday's burglary were works by artists including Van Gogh, Corot, Millet, Sisley, Gauguin, Renoir, Cezanne, Modigliani and Vuillard.

Special privileges cut

CAMP PENDELTON, Calif. — A new coordinator of refugee resettlement promised Thursday there will be no more special privileges for high-ranking South Vietnamese military men to speed their departure from this huge reception center. "Generals will be treated just as any other refugees," said Nick Thorne, a U.S. State Department executive. "There will be no more special privileges." Thorne spoke at a news briefing during which a Marine Corps spokesman reported there were at present 18,559 refugees — Vietnamese and Cambodians — in camp.

Viets begin victory party

HANOI — Top government officials of both Vietnams Thursday opened a three-day celebration of the Communist victory in South Vietnam by calling for peace and reunification in an unprecedented joint television and radio appearance in Saigon. In Hanoi, Communist North Vietnam praised its armed forces which, it said, smashed the South Vietnamese army "to smithereens" in a historic 55-day offensive. It marked the first official acknowledgement by the Communists of Hanoi's role in the blitz that destroyed the Nguyen Van Thieu regime in Saigon. Attorney Nguyen Huu Tho, president of the Viet Cong's National Liberation front, and North Vietnamese President Ton Duc Thang hailed the "solidarity of Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam and all Socialist states of the world," according to dispatches from UPI correspondent Alan Dawson in Saigon.

Shapp lauds Allentown

ALLENTOWN — Gov. Milton J. Shapp Thursday night called Allentown proof that a declining urban community can be rejuvenated. "Allentown has made its future by investing in it," Shapp said at a dinner honoring Allentown's selection for an All-American City Award. "It is not much of an exaggeration to say that whenever there is a major state or federal grant program, there is probably an application labeled 'Allentown,'" Shapp said. "You have been wise in the use of your own resources and zealous in seeking outside help."

Cuba sanctions discussed

WASHINGTON — The United States Thursday agreed to a plan for nations of North and South America to consider removing the trade embargo against Cuba at a special hemispheric conference planned for Costa Rica in mid-July. William D. Rogers, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter American Affairs, reportedly told a closed meeting of the general assembly of the Organization of American States that the United States thought the Costa Rica conference was an appropriate forum for the potentially divisive Cuban issue. Diplomats who attended the session said Rogers made it clear the United States feels the Cuba sanctions issue could be raised either at the Costa Rica meeting or at a special conference later devoted only to the fate of the 11-year-old embargo.

Doctors' strike draws first protest by public

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In the first public demonstration against a 15-day doctors' strike, about 150 protesters marched through downtown San Francisco Thursday chanting demands that Gov. Edmund G. Brown act immediately to end the crisis.

The protesters, shouting "Brown fiddles — hospitals burn" and "One, two, three, four — what is Brown waiting for?," were mostly laid-off hospital workers and others facing unemployment in the strike over new, higher malpractice insurance rates.

In the state capital at Sacramento a major conference of Brown administration officials, legislative leaders and representatives of the physicians and insurance companies broke up Thursday without reaching agreement on how to get the doctors back to work.

In Southern California, anesthesiologists at 13 Los Angeles area hospitals announced they will join the walkout of their Northern California colleagues starting Monday, handling only emergency cases to protest the insurance rates.

About 70 doctors will be involved in the new Southern California walkout, a spokesman said, adding that he European press backs Ford's decision

By United Press International
Newspapers in England, Spain and Israel said Thursday the United States was justified in using military force to retake the American cargo ship Mayaguez and its crew from the Cambodians.

Somewhat surprisingly, the Soviet Union's official Tass news agency reported the American show of strength without comment and the mass media in China omitted mention of it altogether.

Reaction was also favorable in South Africa, but a French newspaper criticized the action. United Nations officials were silent on the matter.

The dollar gained in European money markets.

"This time it would be difficult to blame the United States Administration for what occurred," the London Times said. "This was clearly an act of piracy — indeed, being carried out by the naval forces of another country, an act of war — which no government could ignore."

The Daily Mail said the Americans "were justified in going to the limit to rescue their men and their ship," and the Evening News said the decision to send in the Marines "was one of those very rare occasions when might is right."

The Madrid newspaper Informaciones said the American action was welcomed in Europe as a demonstration that "the Communist victory in Indochina has not turned the United States into a scarecrow."

In a report from Washington, Tass gave the basic details of the operation against Cambodia, mentioning the fighting and the sinking of three Cambodian vessels.

It quoted the Cambodian allegation that the Mayaguez was engaged in intelligence activities, without elaboration.

The main early evening television news in Moscow did not report the U.S. action at all.

All mass circulation media in Peking omitted mention of the matter. Only the international news review prepared by the official news agency Hsinhua for circulation among foreign diplomats and journalists mentioned it by quoting international al news agency reports without comment.

Prince Nordom Sihanouk, the former Cambodian head of state living in Peking for the last five years, remained silent on the note the American diplomatic mission handed the Cambodian embassy Tuesday.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli Labor party newspaper Davar said the United States was right to retake the ship by force.

"The psychological effect of the American move is positive," Davar said. And the government-run

South African Broadcasting Corporation, said the United States would "benefit from the determination not to be pushed around by any pipsqueak nations indulging in criminal acts of violence."

United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim offered to mediate early in the dispute but refused comment on the American military action.

The dollar opened higher in money markets in Europe and Japan in reaction to the end of the new U.S. military involvement in Asia.

Laotian demonstrators free three U.S. hostages

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Student demonstrators in the central Laotian town of Savannakhet freed three American officials they had held hostage but kept control of U.S. government buildings they seized there in an anti-American rampage, U.S. sources said.

The sources said the three Americans — including Sanford J. Stone, the senior U.S. official in central Laos — reported by telephone they were in good health and spirits. The demonstrators allowed them to return to their homes pending arrival of coalition government officials to negotiate their demands.

A Laotian government spokesman Thursday apologized for the anti-American outbreak, saying "the government is very sorry about the incident."

The sources said the demonstrators were still apparently in control of U.S. government buildings in Savannakhet, a Mekong river community of about 30,000 persons. They said there did not seem to be the same degree of destruction as in similar demonstrations Wednesday in the royal capital of Luang Prabang.

In the Luang Prabang demonstrations by about 300 youths, windows at AID and U.S. Information Service offices were broken, furniture and typewriters destroyed, communications equipment damaged and a motor pool of about 20 vehicles looted. The local provincial governor's office was ransacked as well and all Americans were evacuated from the city by air.

U.S. sources said Stone and the other two Americans, who had been held over night in the provincial governor's residence, agreed to remain in their homes until the Laotian government reaches agreement with demonstrators on their demands for the ouster of the U.S. AID mission and the replacement of number of Laotian government officials.

Stone is from Cleveland, Ohio. The other two Americans who were held with him are Charles R. Percy, 63, of Salem, W. Va., an administrative officer, and Daniel P. Ster, 28, of Columbus, Ind., an economist.

Today Souvannouvong, spokesman for the coalition cabinet, said the Pathet Lao and non-Communist ministers who remain after last weekend's collapse of pro-American elements in the government had not yet made any decision about future American presence in this Indochinese country.

Marines' presence protested

BANGKOK (UPI) — Thousands of demonstrators burned an effigy of President Ford in Bangkok Thursday in protest against his sending U.S. Marines to Thailand as part of the operation to recapture the American freighter Mayaguez and its crew from the Cambodian Communists.

With the rescue and retrieval operation completed successfully, American sources said Washington moved swiftly to repair its strained relations with Bangkok by almost immediately flying the 800-man Marine task force back out of Thailand.

Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj, whose credibility was threatened by the U.S. decision to ignore his diplomatic protest against sending Marines based on Thai soil onto Cambodian soil, said his government is considering a complete review of Thailand's long-standing alliance with the United States.

But he said Thailand would stop short of a complete break in relations with Washington.

Barbara Walters top TV hostess

NEW YORK (UPI) — Barbara Walters of NBC's "Today" show won her first Emmy Thursday as daytime TV's top host or hostess in a talk, service or variety program.

However, Miss Walters, in a brief interview, said she had almost withdrawn her nomination because of the award show's "contrived and foolish" format, which pitted news personnel and news programs against talk and game shows.

The National Academy of Television Arts and Science selected Miss Walters over Dinah Shore, Mike Douglas, Jim Hartz of "Today." NBC's "Today" show competed against "Dinah!" a syndicated talk-variety show starring Dinah Shore, and "The Mike Douglas Show," another syndicated talk-variety show. "Dinah!" won.

Miss Walters' award was the first of eight Emmys won by NBC in the second annual daytime awards show. ABC won six Emmys, CBS three and syndicated shows took two. A total of 19 awards were given.

The presentations, televised live by ABC, took place aboard a cruise boat anchored in New York Harbor. Stephanie Edwards of ABC's "AM America" was hostess and Monty Hall of ABC's "Let's Make a Deal" was host for the 90-minute broadcast.

Among the other prominent daytime awards were:

—Outstanding actor in a dramatic series, MacDonald Carey, NBC's "Days of Our Lives."

—Outstanding actress in a dramatic series, Susan Flannery, NBC's "Days of Our Lives."

—Outstanding host in a game or audience participation show, Peter Marshall, NBC's "Hollywood Squares."

—Outstanding game or participation show, NBC's "Hollywood Squares."

—Outstanding actor in a dramatic special, Bradford Dillman, ABC's "The Last Bride for Salem."

—Outstanding actress in a dramatic special, Kay Lenz, ABC's "Heart in Hiding."

—Outstanding dramatic special, ABC's "The Girl Who Couldn't Lose."

REPUBLICANS Bill Quinn Is A Man Of Action

LET'S TAKE A LOOK AT THE RECORD

SERVICES FOR THE ELDERLY —

With nearly 25% of our population 55 and older, I feel that it is necessary to provide more government services to this long ignored segment of our community.

During my first term I provided enthusiastic support for a federally funded nutrition program serving the elderly in three areas of Monroe County. The program provided not only nutritional meals but a sense of community amongst senior citizens; places where they could gather, share their thoughts, experiences and ideas for productive leisure years.

I have also supported subsidized housing for the elderly. Although I admit action in this area has been slow in coming, I can only promise to exert what influence I may have on federal agencies charged with administering such programs.

BRODHEADSVILLE — In an astounding statement at the Hamilton Township supervisors' meeting this month, Loren Fenner told an audience of about 30 people that as far as he was concerned, pitching horseshoes was more important than passing the township's proposed zoning ordinance.

Supervisors Chairman Robert Field had asked Fenner when he would be willing to meet for the last time with the local planning commission to finalize corrections for the zoning ordinance and Fenner said he wouldn't be available until September.

When asked why, Fenner told the audience that he was in the horseshoe league and between that and the upcoming bicentennial, his nights were full this summer. When pressed on the issue, Fenner actually admitted that he thought pitching horseshoes was more important than the zoning ordinance.

The Jackson Township Bicentennial Committee will feature the Pocono Junior and Juvenile Music Study Clubs at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, May 18 at the Readers United Methodist Church. The concert will feature works of American composers and is free to the public.

Featuring artists from ages 6 to 17, the program is sanctioned by both the National Federation and Pennsylvania Federation of Music Clubs.

Young 4-Her's throughout the county can now participate in a horse project even if they don't own a horse. The innovative plan will involve keeping a record book on breeds of horses, physical characteristics, grooming and tack. If you're interested in enrolling, call the Monroe County Extension office.

Game parties at the Kunkletown Firehouse will be held on Saturday, May 17, May 31, June 4, June 28 and July 5.

The Pleasant Valley Elementary Home-School Association will hold its final meeting of the year at 8 p.m., Monday at the Polk School. The following new officers will be installed: Carol Sathmary, president; Helen Mackes, first vice president; Gail Burney, second vice president; Elaine Klopp, recording secretary; Nancy Matsko, corresponding Secretary, and Ruby Longenbach, treasurer.

The Historical Farm Association will hold its second annual dinner meeting at 7 p.m., May 21 at the First Presbyterian Church in Stroudsburg. Dr. John G. Muncie, a charter member of "Friends of Quiet Valley," will speak on "A Quiet Valley in Our Community." The family-style dinner is being prepared by Marge Wakefield and her Girl Scout troop. Dinner is by ticket only.

The Zion United Church Lutheran in Brodheadsville is now collecting items for its annual bazaar, which will be held this year on July 11 and July 12. If you have donations from spring cleaning call Ruth Serfass at 992-4556.

The Jackson Township Bicentennial Committee will sponsor a flea market on June 15 at The Farm in Readers and donations are also being collected for that fund-raising project. If you'd like to help, call Jim Goeck at 629-1994.

And speaking of the Jackson Bicentennial group, it will be serving coffee and cake at the polls on Tuesday and now has plans in the works to open a bicentennial store, which will feature dust bunnies for the ladies, and bicentennial black hats for the men.

The group's next newsletter is set to come out on June 1.

It's ironic that the Jackson group has chosen to call itself the Jackson Elderberries, because 50 years ago that name was enough to make the skinniest Jackson Township resident stand up to defend the honor of the municipality.

Monroe County's 4-H bake sale will be held at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, May 17 at Stafford's Drugs at the Monroe Plaza Shopping Center in Brodheadsville, so don't bother to bake this weekend.

You could feel flavor of the West End from 50 years ago, snuggling underneath the melodies and clanging of the Rutgers University Wind Ensemble Concert at Pocono Mountain High School last weekend.

The sorry part of the evening was that only about 50 people showed up to take in the rare musical experience. That was only the first in a series of eight special concerts that will be provided by The Pocono Wind Symphony under the auspices of the Sivananda Conservatory of Yoga One Science, however, so make sure you put the next one one your calendar. It's an outdoor performance set for 7 p.m. May 31 at the conservatory in Readers. It's something you won't want to miss.

Are you looking for some native West End worms and nightcrawlers? You'll find a whole supply of wigglers to choose from at the Brodheadsville home of Esther Arango. Many of them she raised herself over a three-year period. If you've been purchasing any from Lloyd Altemose's store or Saylor's Lake, you've been buying a part of Esther's tender loving care. If you need a big supply give her a buzz at 992-4789.

Pike sewerage study delayed

MILFORD — A sewerage feasibility study for Pike County won't be finished until the end of May, nearly a month after its deadline, Pike County Commissioners announced Thursday.

Commissioners requested the engineering firm of Glace and Glace, Inc. to conduct a county-wide sewerage feasibility study several months ago after gaining approval from county municipalities.

It was hoped the report would be ready by May 1, but the state Department of Environmental Resources (DER) asked for additional information that set the project back three weeks, Commissioner Warner Deputy said.

According to Deputy, DER wants the report to include detailed information on developments in Pike County, including statistics on acreage, parcels of land and number of homes in development areas.

"The information DER requested was beyond the scope of our contract with Glace and Glace," Deputy said.

"It will require about three additional weeks before Glace and Glace can present a complete report," he added.

Chairman George Coutts said commissioners would rather present the study as a "complete report" instead of in a piecemeal manner.

"We should have the study by the June 5 meeting," he said. If the study is completed early commissioners might hold a special meeting at the end of the month to evaluate the report.

In other business, commissioners expressed satisfaction that the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission suspended for up to six months its decision on proposed rate increases by the Pike County Light and Power Co.

The PUC said studies indicated "the boosts were too high," and expressed the hope that a settlement could be reached between the utility and the protesters before the six month deadline expired.

The PUC can still revoke its suspension, however, and allow a rate hike between now and November.

Pike County commissioners have filed a petition of continuance with the PUC, asking that a final decision await the outcome of similar utility hearings involving Orange and Rockland Utility in New York and New Jersey. The Pike utility is a wholly owned subsidiary of the New York utility.

Board directors nominated for DelVal college center

MATAMORAS — A tentative list of names has been compiled by school directors for a community college "operating board" in the Delaware Valley School District.

At a special work session held earlier this week, school board that will determine policies and programs at the community college.

The school board has already approved the community college concept, but has not given final approval to a three-year contract with Northampton County Area Community College (NCACC).

NCACC will administer the college program, but the local operating board will recommend programs and staff.

Eugene Garvey, school board president, said the following individuals have agreed to serve on the operating board for staggered three year terms: Ed Anchel (chairman), Milford; Paula Banks, Shohola; Harvey Cohen, Westfall Township; Joanne Ficken, Twin Lakes; Joe Biondo, Westfall Township; Reginald Worthington, Milford and William LeMac, Westfall Township.

Four school board members will also serve on the operating board: Kent Ryder, Matamoras; Herman Davis, Westfall Township; Thomas Hogan, Twin Lakes and Michael Palmer, Westfall Township.

According to Garvey, Kate Hayes, who works for the Pennsylvania Extension Service, was also asked to serve on the board, but has not made a decision to accept yet. One other nominee still must be contacted, Garvey explained.

The school board will officially appoint operating board members at the next school board meeting in June.

It is expected operating board members will then determine a program for the community college which will open its doors this fall.

Six of the newly appointed operating board members also served on the advisory board that recommended approval of the $44,671 contract for a community college service center.

Garvey said members were picked to represent broad geographic as well as vocational backgrounds.

He added that only a limited community college program could be organized for September because of the short time available.

The school board has received criticisms over the proposed community college from residents who fear the board has acted too hastily on the matter.

Petitions with over 800 signatures were presented to the board at the last meeting, asking the issue be brought to a public referendum. Board members rejected the proposal.

Summer drives young outdoors

MILFORD — With the coming of summer, the Milford Youth Center in the basement of St. John's Evangelist Church may close its doors because of declining attendance.

Warm weather is the reason the center's activities may be cut short, according to Rev. James Maxwell, rector of the church and a director of the youth center program.

"As soon as the weather started to get nice only a handful of kids showed up. In the past month, there have only been about four or five kids a night," Rev. Maxwell said.

The youth center is scheduled to close Aug. 10 through October, but may close earlier because of the decrease in attendance.

"We'll just have to wait and see what happens before any decision is made," Rev. Maxwell said.

The youth center which opened its doors last October attracted large numbers of teenagers throughout the winter.

The center was open four nights a week from 7 to 10 p.m. and was staffed by 22 volunteers, working on rotating shifts.

Attendance varied from 15 to 40 persons a night during the winter, Rev. Maxwell said, noting that most of the teenagers were between the ages of 12 and 17.

So far, the summer schedule calls for the center to be open Monday and Friday nights.

"We have some special events planned like swimming," Rev. Maxwell explained, "but it really depends on what the kids want before we set a definite agenda."

Last year, the youth center received a $500 grant from the Tri-County Drug and Alcohol Advisory Board for indoor recreational equipment including a fold-up pool table, football machine, pinball machine and program supplies.

Other activities offered at the center were cards, chess, ping-pong, instrumental programs and rap sessions.

"It's not likely we will be requesting any more money for our winter program next year," Rev. Maxwell noted.

"All of our equipment is still in good shape and we have received additional donations amounting to $20 or $30."

Economy threatens Britain's last glory — theaters

Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service

LONDON — The sun may have set on the British Empire, the world may no longer think the pound a sterling currency, this tight little isle may be shrinking into itself. But there yet remains one glory for England — the richness and variety of its theater.

In what other city on a given evening can a playgoer choose among half a hundred central theaters, offering everything from Shakespeare and Ibsen and Shaw to well-turned melodrama, from bright musicals to the fluff of sexy comedies, from the revival of restoration drama to the latest avantgarde experiments, all superbly acted, directed and produced? The range of British theater, and its competence in every style, is unique.

Other countries also have their cathedrals, their ancient monuments touched with history, their lovely countryside and quaint villages to lure the traveller. Most have their opera, their ballet, their symphonies.

It is only to London that the travel companies organize theater tours, where visitors have been known to take in 10 plays in a week's time. Set down all the reasons why tourists, especially Americans, come to Britain and you will find the theater high on every list.

VERMONT ROYSTER

Thinking things over

Like so much in Britain, this glory is a heritage from the past. Its roots lie in Elizabethan England and they have been nourished by the English love of pageantry in all its forms.

That little repertory company in Leeds, that variety hall in Brighton, those horseguards in bright uniforms, the play-acting at the ceremonies of coronations and funerals, of all these is the British theater compounded. Appreciative audiences are as necessary to a vital theater as talented playwrights or actors.

Soviet Jews oppressed

WASHINGTON — Two recent news dispatches from Moscow report:

Russian police warned Soviet Jews in Minsk that "they must not gather among themselves or celebrate Jewish festivals."

"Uniformed police with bullhorns entered the main Moscow synagogue and ordered everyone out before the Passover service had ended."

The purpose of this column is to describe something of the plight of Jews in the Soviet Union and how official harassment restricts and, at times, erases their rights as citizens and their right to practice their religious faith. (Freedom of religion is "guaranteed" under the Soviet constitution.)

Persecution of Jews in Russia prevailed long before the Soviet revolution. It was a hallmark of czarist rule. It waned during the early years after the Communists seized power and reached a new level of virulence under Nikita Khrushchev. It continues today and here are some of its manifestations:

Synagogues were closed in large numbers. The building of new synagogues has been forbidden.

The extent to which the Jewish faith has been suffocated is shown in the open synagogues just before the revolution in 1917 and today. There were 3,000 open synagogues in 1917, 1,011 in 1941, 450 in 1956 and fewer than 50 today in the whole of the Soviet Union.

Meetings for prayer in private Jewish homes are banned.

Hebrew is forbidden

The teaching of Hebrew is forbidden.

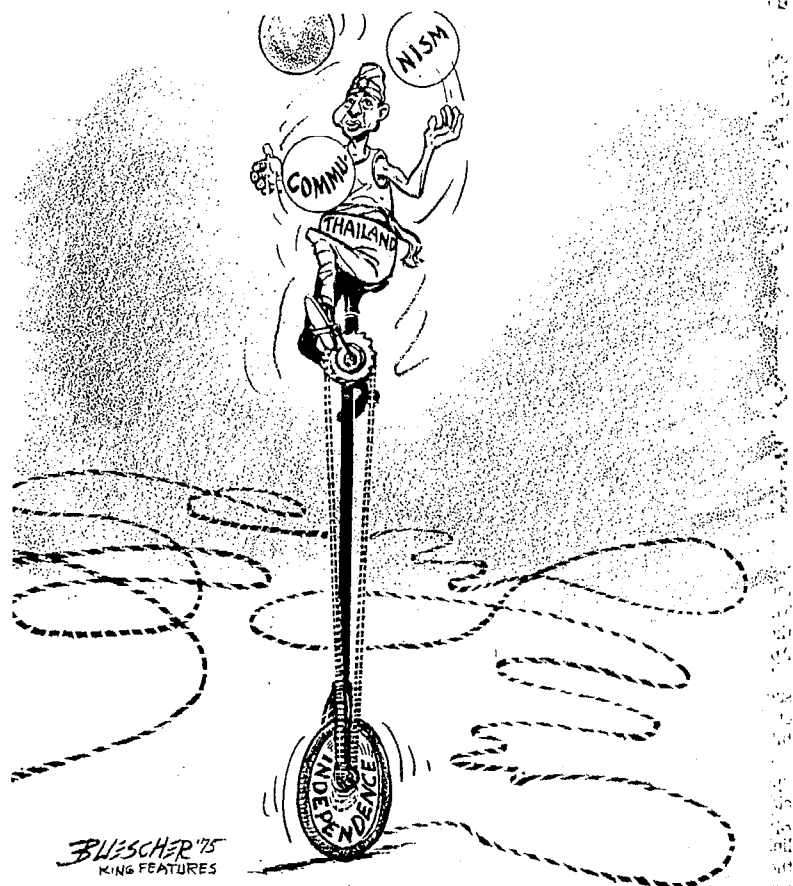

There is an acute shortage of trained rabbis, and the opportunity to provide such religious training is circumscribed.

Prof. German Branover, a professor of physics and mathematics and a Soviet Jew, daringly wrote in 1972 "Despite the proclaimed freedom of religion, the strict observance of Jewish religious precepts is practically impossible in the Soviet Union. I have no desire to renounce my faith. On the contrary, I consider it my duty to explain to people in general and to Jews in particular that the widespread view of this so-called century of science — that religion is an anachronism — is a catastrophic mistake."

"It is absurd, therefore, for the Soviet press to ascribe political, mercantile and various other motives for the longing of Jews to go to Israel."

However pervasively suppressed, the Jewish faith has not died out in the Soviet Union. Despite the fact that religious Jews come under constant attack in the Soviet press, today an increasing number of young Jews are celebrating Jewish festivals and attending the synagogues which are open.

All the foregoing information is drawn from Soviet sources.

Great balancing act

President Ford was misled about Saigon's strength

WASHINGTON — The swift collapse of South Vietnam badly surprised President Ford who was misled, according to White House sources, by the national intelligence estimates.

These estimates are supposed to provide the President with the best possible analysis of what is likely to happen.

He was assured, for example, that the South Vietnamese army would be able to hold off the advancing Communists for several months. Even after the Saigon defenses began to crack, the national intelligence estimate predicted that Hanoi would negotiate with Saigon and form a coalition government.

The beleaguered Central Intelligence Agency was the first, say our sources, to warn that a Communist victory was imminent. The CIA recommended that the United States use its leverage to persuade the Saigon leaders to form a "peace government," which could negotiate a truce.

This would have given the United States more time to arrange an orderly and dignified evacuation. The CIA was overruled, however, upon the advice the U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin who called upon President Nguyen Van Thieu instead to form a war cabinet supposedly to stiffen the resistance.

Although the Joint Chiefs correctly predicted more than two years ago that President Thieu would not survive and that the Communists would win the final struggle for Vietnam, the Pentagon badly misjudged the South Vietnamese army's ability to hold the line.

The Pentagon estimate was that the South Vietnamese would battle the Communists to a standstill along the approaches to Saigon. The only exception was the Air Force intelligence chief, Maj. Gen. George Keegan, who warned that the defenses would collapse.

It was the Pentagon's assessment that the South Vietnamese infantry divisions on the line were as good as any U.S. division. Then why did they buckle? Thieu was shaken by the capture of Ban Me Thout in the Central Highlands, last March. He concluded that his troops were spread too thin and ordered a strategic withdrawal.

But Thieu was indecisive. He would issue orders, then cancel them. He couldn't decide where to make a stand.

Finally, the commander of the Second Military Region, after a meeting with Thieu, returned to his men and announced: "We're pulling out tonight."

They not only abandoned their heavy equipment but left the First Military Region outflanked. What was supposed to be an orderly withdrawal, thereafter, turned into a pell-mell rush for the coast. Panic spread, with every man for himself, until the hasty retreat became a total rout.

Plea made on religious grounds

School taxes challenged in court

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Members of two Christian school associations in Beaver County, Pa., claimed Thursday that school taxes compel them to support a "secular humanism" in public schools in violation of their religious freedom.

The appellants told the U.S. 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals they were entitled to a per-capita equal distribution of tax funds to all children regardless of the schools they attend.

The plea was made on behalf of several members of the Beaver County Christian School Association and the Porterville Christian School Association. The members have children who attend non-denominational schools or make contributions towards maintenance of the facilities.

The parents appealed after a federal court in Pittsburgh granted the Commonwealth, the Blackhawk School District and the Beaver Falls Area School District a motion to dismiss their suit last Sept. 25.

Attorney Rex Downie made the plea on behalf of the appellants.

He was asked at the outset by Judge Max Rosenn about his claim that "secular humanism" as taught in the schools was a separate religion.

Downie held that it was. Then pointing out that the suit had been thrown out by the district commented: "We are in entitled to a day in court to prove this."

The plea was taken under advisement by the appellate court.

Attorney J. Justin Blewitt, who represented the state, told the court the Commonwealth was protected in the case by "sovereign immunity." He said the relief sought by the appellants was barred by recent circuit court rulings elsewhere.

Frank C. Lewis appeared on behalf of the school districts. He concurred with Blewitt's sovereign immunity claim and added that the association members were attempting to invalidate an applicable state law.

"If they want to declare a state law unconstitutional, they should proceed in the state courts," he said.

Downie held that the educational process maintained by the school districts was "hostile and diametrically opposed to the Christian world and life view maintained" by the appellants.

He claimed the appellants were being taxed to support an educational system "destructive of their Christian faith" and were compelled to submit to it "by reason of the absence of an economically equitable alternative."

Eight persons die in train collision

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Two express trains collided at a Swedish railway station Thursday killing eight persons, including seven schoolchildren on an excursion to a zoo, railway officials said.

Nine persons were injured in the crash, three seriously, but were later reported out of danger after surgery.

Officials said an eight-car southbound express, the Oestgota Commuter, was on its way from Stockholm to the southern city of Malmoe, picking up school children along the way for a spring excursion to a safari-type zoo outside Norrkoping.

As it pulled into the Norrkoping station a northbound train started up and slammed into its rear car, officials said.

Rescue workers said most of the dead were crushed when the car fell on top of them as they were thrown out of windows and doors.

Most of the dead children belonged to the same class near the town of Katrineholm, about 50 miles west of Stockholm. They were between 10 and 12 years old.

It was the third serious train wreck in Scandinavia within three months.

The trains were to use a single track using a one way system. Railway officials said the northbound train had apparently started out too soon.

"Most of the persons on the southbound train were already standing in the isles waiting to get off at the station when they were hit," a Swedish State Railway spokesman said.

Railway officials said a possible contributing factor to the accident was that construction work was going on around the station cutting down the number of available tracks for use.

Both trains were traveling at about 25 miles per hour when the accident happened. "Of course it is a risk to let the trains pass on the same track, but the signals should have stopped the train," said railway safety inspector Sven Persson.

Cosmonauts practice link-up

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts, practicing for this summer's real flight, Thursday pretended to link their ship to an American Apollo orbiting the earth.

If the actual docking is successful in July, the promise of possible space rescue will be fulfilled.

A last-minute imaginary "problem" concocted by officials changed the plan for the Apollo to actively make the linkup and the Soyuz took over the dominant role to join the craft.

"Docking went smoothly, everything is just right," reported Alan L. Bean, the backup American commander working in the computer operated simulator.

The simulation of the first international joint flight is done just as if the spacemen are in orbit except that everyone is working in their respective countries. Communication between the crewmen and mission control centers is limited to the times it would be possible on the real flight.

Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kuvassov greeted the astronauts via phone lines after the make believe docking. However, because of communication problems, Mission Control officials and observers could not hear the Soyuz' crew.

The prime American crew, Thomas P. Stafford, commander, Donald K. "Deke" Slayton and Vance D. Brand, took over the simulation from the backup pilots later in the day.

Immediately after the pretend linkup the spacemen began preparing to open the last hatch between the two space craft.

Ford, Shah of Iran hold talks on Mideast situation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and the Shah of oil-rich Iran discussed the outlook for Middle East peace Thursday and the White House said later both leaders were worried about a possible "stalemate" in efforts to obtain an Arab-Israeli settlement.

But the White House said Ford told the Shah during their 95-minute meeting in the Oval office that the United States would "continue to play an active role" in the attempts to gain permanent peace in the Middle East — evidently a reference to the President's talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin next month.

In a statement, the White House also said Ford and the Persian Gulf leader agreed that "close consultation and cooperation should be continued and intensified" between their two nations, coupled with increasing trade.

Ford, along with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, met with the Shah soon after he arrived on an official visit to Washington.

At welcoming ceremonies, including a 21-gun salute on the White House south lawn, Ford and the Shah took note of long standing friendship between the United States and Iran and voiced confidence that it would continue.

It's time for a change . . . NOW!

Have your taxes been reduced in dollars? Most of us are not paying taxes in mills, but in dollars. It's not a very difficult move to keep the millage rate down if the appraised value of property is increased substantially. It's even easier if the county balance is drawn down from $300,000 to $50,000 and another $200,000 income is placed in the budget in anticipation of the sale of Pleasant Valley Manor. As a matter of fact the increased income to the county now places the County Commissioners in managing a business of over four million dollars.

If you agree that the job of managing the affairs of Monroe County is far more complex than a few years ago, no doubt you would like to be represented by someone with the education and background to analyze complex information and make responsible and prudent decisions.

The basic issue facing us all this Spring is that of satisfaction versus dissatisfaction. If you are not satisfied with the direction of the county government and believe that the challenges and decisions ahead call for a greater depth of experience and knowledge, I earnestly invite you to join with me in my quest for good government.

If we choose wisely now . . . if we urge our friends and relatives to join us now in making the right choice, there is no reason why your candidate will not be elected this fall. If you believe that NOW IS THE TIME FOR A CHANGE read the ballot carefully, across to the end of the line, and pull the lever over my name.

Yours for good government,

Abortion conviction upheld

BOSTON (UPI) — The conviction of Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin for manslaughter of an aborted fetus was upheld Thursday by the trial judge.

Edelin, 36, an obstetrician at Boston City Hospital, was convicted Feb. 15 in the death of a fetus during an elective abortion performed on an unmarried 17-year-old woman in 1973.

Judge James P. McGuire at that time sentenced Edelin to one year on probation.

The doctor's defense lawyers began appealing the verdict and two weeks ago asked McGuire to overturn the jury decision, claiming the verdict from a predominantly Roman Catholic jury was against the weight of evidence in the six-week trial.

McGuire Thursday denied the motion in a hearing that lasted less than five minutes.

Edelin remained free pending completion of all appeals.

Delivered at funeral

Mindszenty eulogized

MARIAZELL, Austria (UPI) — A eulogy delivered Thursday at the funeral of Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty accused both the Communists and the Vatican of subjecting the former primate of Hungary to needless suffering.

Dutch priest Warenfried van Straaten, a personal friend of the cardinal, said the Communists tortured Mindszenty to make him confess at his 1949 treason trial in Budapest — widely regarded as a show trial.

"He was subject to merciless torture," Straaten said. "God tested him and found him worthy. God tested him again and he suffered again when the Pope removed him from office" as primate of Hungary last year.

However, Straaten, founder of an organization to aid priests in Eastern Europe, advised caution in discussing the decision of Pope Paul VI. "It would be irresponsible to reject the Pope's decision. Let us pray that future developments will justify the Pope's action."

Mindszenty, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in the 1949 trial, sought refuge and spent 15 years in the U.S. Embassy in Budapest after Russian troops put down the 1956 Hungarian revolt.

He went into Austrian exile under Vatican and American pressure in 1971.

Ann Landers

Relative problem

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old boy who has two problems. My aunt and my uncle.

They live 200 miles from here and come every month and stay for a week. I have to give up my bedroom and sleep on the floor because they are "guests."

This aunt and uncle have two children who live in this town and I don't see why they can't go stay with them.

When I complain to my mom and dad they say I am at "that age." Some answer. What do you think about a kid getting treated this way?

Displaced Person

Dear D.P.: If you were asked to give up your room for a couple of weeks at Christmas or Easter, or for an occasional weekend, I'd say O.K. But according to my figures you are spending 25 per cent of your nights sleeping on the floor. I don't think that's fair.

How about a pull-out sofa or a double cot for your aunt and uncle since they are such frequent guests? Suggest — and quote me. (P.S. You might also quote the wise man who said, "Relatives, like fish, begin to stink after three days.")

Dear Ann Landers: I was both amused and infuriated when I read the letters from guys who lambasted "In Tact," the 18-year-old virgin. They called her a "tease" and a few other not-so-nice names. Too bad about those poor "tortured" guys. I know all their sad stories because I, too, am an 18-year-old virgin who has been subjected to the same sales talk.

I'm no dog. I've had plenty of dates with great-looking guys and I'm not a prude either. But I decided when I listened to guys talk about how they had scored with Alice the first night. Mazie was a push-over and Nell was a sure thing — that these girls were dumb bunnies and I wasn't going to be added to the list. Quiet research revealed that over half of my ninth grade class had "lost it at the Astor." This information came from the girls as well as the guys. It made me sick.

When the chicks get wise to the fact that sex for most teenage dudes is an ego trip, they'll be able to say "no" a lot easier. As for those sex maniacs who get revved up at the sight of an ankle and give three girls a week the "I love you" bit, all I have for them is disgust. It's a rotten way to unload pent-up energy. Sign me

A Big V Who Is Enjoying Life

Dear V.: You sound like a solid lady who needs no advice from me. In fact, thank you for giving some. After all, you're 18. I'm a 56-year-old antique. What do I know?

Dear Ann Landers: Under what circumstances would it be proper to invite guests to attend a wedding and exclude them from the reception?

I know of a couple who drove 300 miles to attend a wedding and when they arrived they discovered a reception was being held after the wedding. They had not been invited. What does this sound like to you, Ann?

Perplexed

Dear Perp: It sounds like a gross misunderstanding. The reverse is far more feasible. Guests are often omitted from the wedding (especially if it's the second time around for the bride or groom) but they are invited to the reception. I can't imagine inviting a couple to come from out of town for the ceremony and not offer them the sociability and refreshments that follow.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Fired LCB member fights Democratic machine pols

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — While most primary election candidates were canvassing Allegheny County for votes this spring, Democrat Commissioner hopeful Alex Jaffurs was flat on his back.

Jaffurs, 44, who underwent surgery for removal of a cancerous intestinal tumor, campaigned from his hospital bed — studying the issues, writing statements with running mate Jim Flaherty, and even, at one point, hosting reporters to tell them the surgery was successful and his political goal unchanged.

Jaffurs, fired from an appointed state Liquor Control Board post during a brouhaha over gift liquor to officials, has a big goal. He and Flaherty, the brother of independent Democrat and Pittsburgh Mayor Pete Flaherty, are taking on the Democratic county machine in challenging two-term majority Commissioners Leonard Staisey and Thomas Foerster.

Their grassroots campaign is one of only two bright spots in a dull primary. In the other, flamboyant appointed District Attorney John J. Hickton is running with Democratic Party endorsement for nomination to a full term against Pete Flaherty's former police chief, Robert Colville.

On the Republican side, incumbent Commissioner Dr. William Hunt and gadfly Clerk of Courts Robert N. Peirce Jr. have only token opposition for the two commissioner nominations, and attorney Bernard Markowitz is unopposed for the District Attorney nomination.

Row offices up

The voters also will be choosing nominees for six other county row offices and nine open slots on the Common Pleas Bench.

Pittsburghers will nominate candidates for controller and five City Council seats, while throughout the county voters will nominate justices of the peace, school directors and other local officers.

In suburban Mount Lebanon, voters will decide whether liquor licenses should be granted in their exclusive residential community, and in McKees Rocks, a proposed home rule charter is on the ballot.

The Flaherty-Jaffurs team and Colville began their campaigns by forming a loose alliance, a move some interpreted as an effort by Pete Flaherty to extend his administration into the suburbs.

But except for sharing billboard expenses and a common theme of "county government needs new blood," the Jaffurs-Flaherty and Colville campaigns have gone different directions.

Colville, who tried but failed to win the party endorsement, is fighting it out with Hickton over the best ways to enforce laws and prosecute criminals, a feud that existed when Colville was police chief.

But in the commissioners' race, as in Pete Flaherty's maiden run for City Hall, the major issue is machine politics versus new-style populism.

Flaherty-Jaffurs say the two major basic issues are waste and "an emerging pattern of corruption" in government.

The statewide imbroglio over what the Senate should do with its member and convicted extortionist Frank Mazzei of Pittsburgh appears to them to be tailor made for their campaign.

Commissioner Foerster says the Mazzei issue "has no more to do with the commissioners' race than the man in the moon."

But Jaffurs says the Mazzei issue "has become the absolute manifestation of the old political system of 'you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours.'"

To Jaffurs, who was ousted as LCB counsel after embarrassing some state officials, says the commissioners' race is a "classical example of the machine system being challenged by the new system, the open system with limited finances, disclosure of assets..."

"That's what the public demands and needs today," he says, adding that for that reason endorsement by popular Pete Flaherty is not enough for the Jim Flaherty-Jaffurs ticket to win.

Peeking at medical charts

I sneaked a look at the report of my father's general physical examination while I was in the doctor's office. It said he had "chronic pancreatitis." How serious is this condition?

Miss R.O.I., N.J.

Dear Miss I.: Before I tell you about chronic pancreatitis I must first warn my readers against the fear-provoking habit of "sneaking" a look at a doctor's report.

The written notes of a physician are too complex for the layman to interpret. A descriptive term, or a word specially adapted to a physician's vocabulary, is meaningful only to him. If any translation is to be done, it must be made verbally so that the patient and his family will not be confused or terrified.

Many patients in a hospital will read their charts if they are within reach. More often than not they will find something in the chart that will confuse or frighten them.

A note written as a diagnostic speculation, for example, may seem to the patient to be a certainty. A misinterpretation of a phrase or a word can set up a state of real anxiety.

It is imperative that you tell your father's doctor about your concern. He will describe the basic problem and also the prognosis (outlook).

Chronic pancreatitis is an infection or inflammation of the pancreas, a small but important gland that lies deep in the abdominal cavity behind the stomach.

There are various forms of pancreatitis, all of which must be clearly defined before treatment can be started.

A large battery of tests are now available to study enzymes, liver disease and gall bladder disorders, any of which may be the basis for chronic pancreatitis.

Chemical studies of the blood can now detect this condition which previously may have evaded exact diagnosis.

Flyer wants to see mail plane fly again

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Northrop Alpha last flew the mail in 1935. Daniel McGrogan is making it his business to see that the old monoplane flies again.

McGrogan, a flight operations training instructor for Trans World Airlines, heads a group of volunteers who have set out to restore the sleek plane, using the remains of the only one of its kind that could be found in a nationwide search.

The plane was one of about 20 manufactured in 1930 in southern California. McGrogan says the plane was one of the first aircraft to feature all-metal construction and a practical two-way radio.

TWA used the Alpha as a combination passenger-cargo carrier until 1932 when it was modified to an all-cargo mail plane. The planes were retired in 1935.

It is an exacting task and must be done right, McGrogan said, for the finished product will be displayed in the Smithsonian Institution's National Air and Space Museum scheduled to open in 1976.

He's not sure how the job will be completed. He's just sure it will.

"I don't have a cookbook solution on how to put the Alpha together," McGrogan says, "So we're going to have to feel our way."

An estimated 35 million people are expected to visit the revived Alpha, hanging from a Smithsonian ceiling, during its five-year stay in Washington.

"That's why I'm so persnickity about it. I can just see all those people looking at the plane—it's got to be the best," says McGrogan.

He is determined the plane will fly, even if only for one turn around the pattern.

"An airplane's no good just sitting around," McGrogan said. "It's got to work."

Peter Stone at the latest radical chic wallow of the rich and famous emerging from their sequins long enough to party the Cesar Chavez down-with-scab-grapes Kennedy-political cause tried to bring together a crowded-political play — told New York Governor Hugh Carey and Elhel Kennedy they should marry and create an instant 27-person White House-keeping family.

Dizzy Dean's cornpone-coined "slud" for "slid" was considered but slipped out of semantic contention for inclusion in the new Merriam-Webster Dictionary: pedantic squares! . . . The world's most gifted Nutmeg, Jack Douglas, titles his latest tragi-hilarity "Benedict Arnold Slept Here," all about his Honeymoon Mountain Inn in Maine . . . Helen Lawrenson, who caught a corner of the chic limelight 40 years ago with "Latins Are Lousy Lovers," has a new adultery-confessional out: she snitches retroactively and, in most cases posthumously, brags she swung with Bernard Baruch and other celebrated (if not for that) lads including Harlem mobster Bumpy Johnson; she labels Churchill immoral and evil and rates John O'Hara a "second-rate imitation of Scott Fitzgerald;" she's wrong — John was a first-rate Fitzgerald imitation.

Book Row speculation as to which celebrity's tell-all would sell the most books: the consensus is (if she'd really tell it truly) Jackie Bouvier Kennedy Onassis) . . . One cynic demurred that Jackie couldn't possibly boost it above neo-fiction: "When her half-brother was writing a Bouvier biography, Jackie tried to get him to shift the job of a not too long ago direct Belgian antecedent from a just plain overalld carpenter to at least a cabinet maker. By the time she gets around to it she should find an ancestral artistic profession that would seem much bigger in that woodpile."

Jimmy Connors, who picked up more than $500,000 rendering to Caesars Palace the publicity that was Caesar's, adds another $250,000 in TV-ad loot. What's Jimmy's publicity trick? "I'm a louse," he granted. "If you're going to be a louse, be a good one," he itched, not sounding too face-tious.

The super-elegant Queen Elizabeth 2 will steam behind the Iron Breakwater next March 25 through May 5 when she ties

Warren Beatty's latest inanity—in London, he told interviewers he wouldn't rule out political office for himself; Teddy and Warren? The Repubs could fight back with Ronnie and John Wayne.

It's tell-all time in today's certainly livelier arts: on the round heels of Helen Lawrenson's aforementioned candid bedtime cavalcade comes an eager disbosoming by Hermione Gingold caught up in the same London-of-Lawrenson, also getting a few retroactive carnalities off her considerable chest: asked if she'd enjoyed many lovers in her salad (and apparently entree and dessert) days, Hermione self-tattled in her mine of creative naughty nostalgia: "Yes, I had a good many. Last time I had a cold I tried to list them by names. I got to sleep with the Sandman faster than counting sheep."

The next Arthur Laurents play ("Gypsy" was his last hit) is titled "Scream" and will star Angela Lansbury. It's about a WW II German refugee now running a beauty parlor in her home in Kew Gardens, Queens, L.I., where she dedicates her life to erasing Nazis she's tracked down here.

Scandal stays quieter along Manhattan's Park Ave. where the swinging seems muted: such as the rich heiress off to South America with her interracial live-in lad. Her parents had been financing the secret fling but balked at their sinning aboard; bigots!

Friend needs freedom

By Jean Adams

FREEDOM: (Q.) Jenny and I were close friends for almost three years, but not now. Since she met Keith, she's ignored me more and more. Now she sometimes doesn't even say "hi" when she passes me in the hall.

Please don't tell me to forget her. Friends like her are hard to find. What can I do to get her back? —

Hurting in Pennsylvania (A.) You do not have to forget Jenny and you do not have to lose her. But you do have to FREE her so that she can live the new life she has found with Keith.

If you can put aside your possessiveness (and maybe jealousy too), make no demands on her, and be happy with and for her in her new status, you can save your friendship. It will be a different kind of friendship, however — more mature than the former one, more suited to her age and your age now.

In freeing Jenny, you will also free yourself to find new friends — including boys.

Kids' money

The first time my child said, "Do I have to buy it with my own money?" I was shocked. To begin with, the child was two and it was his first complete sentence. Secondly, he was employed without a dime in his diaper to rattle. But the phrase persisted and today, as a teenager, it is used on a regular basis. There isn't one parent who seems to know at what stage in a child's life you are no longer responsible for (a) parts of their body, (b) entertainment, (c) food consumption, (d) medical, (e) social and (f) bad debts. During the past week I have paid for gas for my own car that was burnt up before I got a chance to see it recorded on the gas gauge... Garden patch

By JOHN WITHROW
Monroe County
Agricultural Agent

Successful gardens don't just happen. They are the result of proper planning, good management, and careful workmanship. Many vegetables grown in home gardens are often wasted because too many of one kind mature at the same time.

One way to avoid having too large a crop at once is to make successive plantings of favorite vegetables. Plant only enough seed to provide the quantity you can use within a short period.

Then after a few weeks, replant. Another way to maintain a steady supply is to plant early, midseason and late-maturing varieties.

The Cooperative Extension Service has a publication to help you plan, grow and harvest your vegetables. The "Vegetable Guide For Home Gardeners" is a 30-page booklet listing varieties, days to maturity, disease resistance, cultural practices and pest identification and control. Copies may be obtained by calling 421-6430 or writing P. O. Box 270, Stroudsburg.

DINGMANS FERRY — Five Monroe County 4-H leaders recently attended the North Eastern Pennsylvania Regional Leaders Forum. The event, which was held at the Pocono Environmental Education Center in Dingmans Ferry, Pennsylvania involved 50 leaders from Carbon, Luzerne, Lackawanna, Monroe, Pike, Schuylkill and Wayne Counties. Attending from Monroe County were: Sue Anderson, Effort; Donna Clarke, Linda Drozal, David Forth, Esta Perry, all of Stroudsburg. Leaders Forum is to provide leaders with the leadership abilities and expertise which will help them with their clubs according to John Withrow, County Agent. This was accomplished through educational sessions and exchanging ideas.

Monroe County leaders who attended the event will have an opportunity to share their knowledge with other county leaders at future county leader forums. For more information contact John Withrow, at 205 Post Office Bldg., Stroudsburg, 421-6430.

Flank steak recipes

By BARBARA GIBBONS

A confirmed low-calorie cook knows that flank steak is the most figure-wise cut of beef there is. Only 655 calories per pound.

Following are two delicious ways to turn this leanest, least-caloried cut into a slow-simmered pot roast, instead of a quick-cooked steak. White kitchen string and seasoning will turn flank steak into a rolled roast, slow-simmered to a delicious tenderness and thinly sliced. Each serving is around 200 calories or more of the 400 calories or more that most pot roasts' cuts would be.

Dieters pot roast
1½ pound flank steak
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1½ teaspoons mixed Italian seasoning
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 tablespoon diet margarine salt and pepper
16 ounce can Italian tomatoes, broken up
¼ cup Chianti wine
¼ cup water
¼ cup chopped onions
Lay flank steak flat and sprinkle with cheese, Italian seasonings and minced garlic. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Roll the flank steak lengthwise; tie in several places with clean white kitchen string. Heat the diet margarine in a heavy nonstick Dutch oven or electric skillet. Brown the rolled steak slowly on all sides. Pour off any fat.

Add tomatoes, wine, water and onions. Cover and cook very slowly over low heat about 2 hours, until very tender. Uncover during the last half hour, allowing liquid to evaporate into a thick sauce. Slice; top with sauce. Serves six, 206 calories each.

Flemish flank roast
1½ pound beef flank steak
1 clove garlic, finely minced
½ teaspoon salt
pinch of pepper
1 tablespoon diet margarine
½ teaspoon mixed poultry seasoning small bay leaf
¾ cup (half 12-ounce bottle) low-calorie, low carbohydrate "light" beer
½ teaspoon brown sugar
1 onion, thinly sliced
freshly chopped parsley
Lay steak flat and sprinkle with garlic, salt, pepper and ¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning. Roll up lengthwise and tie with string in several places. Brown rolled steak slowly on all sides in diet margarine. Add beer, bay leaf and brown sugar. Cover and simmer 1½ hours.

Will shoppers accept meat substitute?

Soy protein has arrived in market place

By MARY LEONARD
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

By 1980 perhaps 20 per cent of the "meat" you eat may not be meat at all. Vegetable protein, specifically soy protein painstakingly textured and treated to look, taste, smell, and chew like meat, has arrived in the market place and eventually will assume, some say, a permanent place in the American market basket and diet.

Saying that are the nutritionists who believe Americans already eat too much high-cholesterol animal fat; others are representatives of Miles Laboratories, Inc., the company that in January introduced consumers to Morningstar Farms' links, patties, and hamlike slices (Ersatz sausage), Breakfast Patties (artificial pork patties), and Breakfast Slices (substitute ham). The products are meat analogues, or "meats" made of textured vegetable protein.

Unlike other familiar soy-based consumer products such as bacon-flavored salad bits and meat extenders, these analogues can be served alone as entrees.

Because they are made with highly purified proteins and fortified with vitamins and minerals, the analogues are nutritionally equivalent to their real-meat counterparts. Their lack of animal fat makes them cholesterol-free and lower in calories than their natural twins.

Cooked up and served up, the Morningstar Farms' links, patties, and hamlike slices do look like meat. Taste? If I hadn't been conscious of eating some very specialized soybeans, I probably wouldn't have perceived these foods as being somewhat saltier, grainer, and more rubbery than the real thing.

"Technological developments over 25 years have turned laboratory curiosities into esthetically pleasing and nutritionally sound consumer products," says Dr. Aaron M. Altschul, professor of nutrition at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. "With their implications for improving human nutrition and reducing competition between man and animal for cereal grains, the analogues may be as great a discovery as bread."

The analogue technology actually comes by way of the textile and plastics industries. Through a sophisticated and expensive process, food technologists now can purify the soybean to a 90 per cent protein isolate; that isolate can be liquefied and either pumped through a spinnerette or ex-truded through holes to form fibers or particles.

The fibers, resembling animal muscle, can be blended with other proteins, flavors, fats, colors, and binders to simulate the look, "mouth feel," and flavor of meat.

The technique of texturizing vegetable protein was developed by a handful of small food-processing companies that have served a specialized religious-vegetarian market; now the technique is being improved by the giants in the food-technology field.

Besides Miles Laboratories, General Mills is testmarketing frozen, ready-to-serve chunks of analogue ham and chicken called Country Cuts, which are suitable for salads and casseroles. General Foods is test marketing texturized baconlike analogues called Lean Strips.

At the moment, however, the technology behind analogue beef, pork, chicken, and seafood may be ahead of analogue acceptance by the consumer. "No doubt about it. We're dealing with products as new, as unusual, and to some, as unacceptable as cake mixes were in the 1940s," said Helen Horton, consumer-services director for Miles' grocery-products division.

"Textured vegetable protein has a bad image; the people who have used it to extend beef found its taste, smell, and effects on the stomach unpleasant," Mrs. Horton added.

"Now we're dealing with a purer protein analogue that eliminates the negative effects and offers a good-tasting, positive health benefit to people who are concerned about cholesterol."

Spring lamb, pork scarce this year

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

Pork chops and lamb, traditionally more plentiful and cheaper in the spring, are expected to cost more this year, although higher prices on some cuts are still in the offing.

Extension specialists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln say per capita pork supplies are at about a 10-year low, with no increase expected until 1977. Yet, retail prices for loin end pork chops in UPI's regular roundup of basic food prices in 27 cities were unchanged this week from three months ago, when they ranged from 89 cents to $1.79 a pound. The current high was in Concord, N.H., Cheyenne, Wyo., and Boston and the low, in Birmingham, Ala., Little Rock and Pittsburgh.

Lamb and sheep numbers also are at their lowest level, the extension specialists said, and prices are expected to be higher than last fall and winter. But one New York chain had a special of $1.19 a pound on frozen legs of lamb from New Zealand, which tend to be cheaper than the domestic Still cheaper alternatives included ground chuck, only 65 cents a pound for the third successive week in Los Angeles. A mid-Manhattan supermarket in New York City reported a high of $1.59.

Whole broiler-fryer chickens were 41 cents a pound in Phoenix, 45 cents in Little Rock, Washington, D.C., and San Francisco, 49 cents in five other cities. A high of 83 cents in Portland, Ore., topped even Honolulu's 79 cents.

Yearling fowl, which are ideal for soup, fricassee and stews, were only 39 cents a pound in two New York City chains. Turkey leg quarters also represented a good buy at the same price in one market there.

The best poultry buy for spring should be eggs, said the Nebraska extension specialists. One New York chain sold grade A large eggs for only 59 cents a dozen, or less than a nickel apiece. They were 54 cents a dozen in Los Angeles and 55 cents in Jacksonville, Fla. Hartford and Honolulu reported the high of 85 cents, and in five other cities they brought 75 to 77 cents.

Family Fare

Membership drive slated

By LORA SHARPE
Family Fare Editor

BARTONSVILLE — The Pocono Singles Club, a companionable organization, is beginning a membership drive this Friday.

The club was organized in February with a dozen members. In four months, it has almost tripled its membership.

The aim of the Pocono Singles is not necessarily matrimony, according to members, but companionship and friendship.

"The people who come in wanting to get married tomorrow, generally don't come back," said Lucille McNamara, acting head of the singles club.

The marital status of a member is the one requirement about which the club is unyielding.

Membership applications ask not only marital status, but ask for details of the absent spouse's leave-taking. For example, if a man is widowed he must enter the date of spouse's death and place of burial on the application.

Mrs. McNamara explained

the apparent invasion of privacy this way: "We want to make sure a person isn't married. If we have the details, we can check. We haven't run into this problem (of falsification) yet, but we have to be prepared for it in the future."

Members are asked to join the club after attending three functions. The club meets every Friday at 8:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, Bartonsville, for socializing. Several other activities — swim parties, house parties, a visit to Solo Parents in Allentown — are planned each month.

A member submits his application with a $5 initiation fee. After 30 days, his application is acted on. If accepted, a member must pay $10 for yearly dues.

Dues cover some club activities, while others are dutch treat. For instance, the cocktail party planned for 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday as part of the membership drive will be paid for by the club. However, each member is on his own at the Friday night gatherings.

The present membership of the Pocono Singles is primarily in the 40 to 45 age group. Half the membership is widowed; half, divorced. Only three members have never been married.

Members say they have joined the group to meet people and for companionship. "Because I was lonely," was the succinct reason given by one man.

"I wouldn't have met half the people I have if I hadn't joined the club," said Mrs. McNamara, a recent transplant from Silver Springs, Md.

The club tries to emphasize its chief aim of friendship with such practices as sending birthday cards and holding house parties at which food is homecooked by the women and the men mix the drinks.

"People have the wrong impression of singles clubs," said Mrs. McNamara. "Many people frown on them or are too timid to join."

Food demands proper handling

NEW YORK — "Safe food must be planned — not left to chance, and the advent of hot weather accents the need for more careful planning."

So emphasizes Sara Beck, consumer specialist with the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service — the U.S. Department of Agriculture agency which inspects every animal and fowl destined for food moving across state lines.

"The cooperative efforts of USDA and state agencies to make available clean, safe and wholesome food will be in vain unless you take certain precautions to keep it that way," says Miss Beck.

What do these precautions include? Proper care in buying, storing, handling and cooking food, she advises.

"Shop for meat and poultry and other perishable foods just before you check out," Miss Beck urges as a basic shopping practice. "Unless you make this a consistent practice, you may be tied up in store traffic or diverted by bargain hunting longer than you expect and thus risk contamination of the perishables in your basket."

Another Beck shopping rule: Make sure frozen foods are hard-frozen and have been kept below the frostline and in the supermarket freezer.

Miss Beck suggests that you can tell when frozen foods have been poorly handled by these signals.

"They have signals you can easily read," Miss Beck explains. "One of those signals is softness. When you pick up frozen food that feels soft, you know it has not been kept at zero F. or below."

Also, she points to another signal — an ice coating on the outside of the package.

"This is a good indication that there has been some previous thawing and refreezing."

Just Between Us —

By Bobby Westbrook

It's been a busy week for the biddies: Two of the major spring social events on successive days. What with refreshing their embroidered kimonos to wear to the Woman's Club Oriental brunch on Monday and coordinating their most handsome ensembles for the Hospital Auxiliary luncheon and fashion show on Tuesday, everybody was busy, busy.

However, the oriental flavor of the luncheon was certainly enhanced by the costumes worn by the members, some of them elaborately embroidered, some complete with obi sashes and thonged socks or cooie hats, some bought on world travels, some of them borrowed.

In fact, Nona Goldsmith out-fitted her whole table, practically, with costumes from their years in the orient — although few of the women had the courage to wear their costumes on the street so there was almost as much dressing and undressing as among the models at the fashion show the next day.

The guests at the fashion show were almost as fashionable as the models. For some reason women feel compelled to dress up more for a fashion show than anything else, except a wedding. Perhaps because they don't want to seem dowdy by contrast.

On the same principle, maybe, that when you are trying on shoes in a shoe store, the shoes which you wore in and which seemed perfectly respectable, somehow look very seedy and down-at-the-heels when the time comes to put them back on.

Anyway, many of the women headed for the fashion show seemed to have avoided the decision on how long is longer for skirt length by taking to pants suits where the only decision centers around how loose is looser.

The oriental program on Monday was just the kind of travel talk most ladies love, with lots of handsome souvenirs from shopping expeditions, and what the accommodations were like and what they had to eat.

In that line, the anecdote most guests remembered to tell their friends about was the one about the appetizers, which included a delicious one where the meat had to be sucked from tiny bones in a sort of fan shape. Delicious, that is, until they found out that it was a bat wing.

A better kept and more rewarding secret was the surprise presentation to Florence Scholla from both the library board and the woman's club for her 19 years of service. Florence had been so busy arranging the enormous centerpiece on the speaker's table from flowers from her garden, and getting into her oriental dress, that she was half through eating before she noticed her nephews, Bob and Tom Weichel, among the few men in the audience.

"Whatever are you doing here?" she asked them directly, while Judy Wells scrambled to conceal the orchid intended for Florence, which she'd hidden behind a "Reserved" sign. They dismissed the question, explaining that Jesse Pierson wanted some male support.

Even then, Florence didn't tumble to the surprise. "I thought Jesse was going to give a political speech," she said afterward. Anyway it couldn't have happened to a nicer person.

Wood talks to WCTU

EAST STROUDSBURG — Lieutenant Norma Wood of the local Salvation Army was the speaker at the Women's Christian Temperance Union meeting of the Stroudsburgs on May 9 in the Zion United Church of Christ.

He told the history of the founding of the Salvation Army in England; it having been called "A Christian Mission at its beginning and the sole motive was to bring men and women into the right relationship with Jesus Christ. Wood enumerated the various programs of the local unit at East Stroudsburg and what it has meant to the community. The Union voted to send the Temperance magazine to the six high schools of the county, to support the state encampment and the USO fruit juice program.

Wyckoff Shopper

* Thoughts over a second cup of coffee while gazing through a kitchen window . . .

Oh, look . . . there's our chipmunk! He looks as busy as Dick Kishpaugh, pleased as punch poking around his new Plaza Shop Home Center. Now that there in full swing, I don't want to miss going in there . . . I'm too afraid I'll miss something! That unpainted furniture is just what Dick said it was . . . the BEST he's ever seen. Imagine going all the way to Chicago to find the best, and then discovering it's made in Honesdale. And how about Hilda Dimmick! She's so happy with her lamp department she's smiling from ear to ear . . . "lit up" like one of her lamps! Gee, it IS a great addition to the store . . . no wonder "PaPa" is proud! . . . Wish I'd been a mouse the other midday when Mr. Ottaway hosted a luncheon in PaPa's honor. Allen Gould, Bobby Westbrook, Charles Edmondson and Ross Howe represented The Pocono Record, and Bill Wells, Walter Wyckoff and Peter Wyckoff accompanied PaPa, and I hear tell he had more fun than anyone. Mr. Ottaway presented him with the cover "plate" of the "Wyckoff's First 100 Years" special edition and he hung it proudly in the tearoom for all to share! I'll bet they had a wonderful time . . . Come to think of it, that pretty well describes the time Duane Walck and I had the other rainy afternoon when we traveled to the Swiftwater Methodist Church to show "These Purple Mountains." It was a joint meeting of the Swiftwater church members and their friends from the Keokee Chapel, and such nice folks they were, too! They loved the "Wyckoff Story," which certainly was produced with love. This is the second time I've seen it, and I enjoyed it even more than the first. Duane's artistry with the film . . . Bob Brooks' splendid narration in his deep baritone voice . . . put it together and you have something very special. They enjoyed the film, and we enjoyed being invited. We had a post film conversation with Pastor Russell Walters. He is a very energetic man . . . busy with so many interesting projects; and he could use a little help with one of them. "Maybe we could find someone for him that MIGHT have an old recipe for ink . . . the kind the early settlers made with berries and roots. He is planning a "centennial camporee" with the Pocono Outreach Camp of the United Methodist Church, and they are going to explore the world of yesteryear, right down to the making of ink! IF they can find a recipe. He said to call him at home if anyone might have one . . . and he gave me his number . . . 595-7643. Hope someone DOES have a recipe they would like to share . . . I know he'd appreciate it! . . . Oh, there's the morning dove . . . aren't they beautiful! You know . . . wouldn't one of those new Hawaiian coconut and sand pebble wind chimes that I just saw in the gift department look and sound beautiful out there in the garden! I must remind myself to pick one up . . . the chipmunk and the morning dove would LOVE it!!!!!!

Capitalism crippled, not yet crushed in Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — Capitalism has been crippled but not yet crushed in the Communist takeover of South Vietnam.

The shooting had hardly stopped when an entrepreneur set up shop on a Tu Do Street sidewalk across from the National Assembly building and began making "Ho Chi Minh" sandals out of old automobile tires.

Saigonese immediately began buying them at prices equivalent to the cost of Western-style footwear here.

For a few days after Communist troops marched into the city April 30, the sidewalk market for old copies of Playboy and Penthouse magazines almost disappeared. But it has come back now and among the browsers are North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers.

Sidewalk vendors of wristwatches show their wares to the soldiers, who invariably give the timepieces the old and universal "hold - it - up - to - the - ear" test before bargaining.

No doubt they occasionally get taken, as did the American GIs before them.

Beggars, prostitutes and transvestites disappeared from the streets for a couple of days after the takeover but many of them now are back at their old stands.

But the few bars that have reopened do little business and most of the pretty hostesses that worked in them have gone, some reportedly back to their villages and a simpler way of life.

In any case, the victorious troops do not drink as much as the losers did, certainly not as much as the Americans. Occasionally a Viet Cong sergeant will order a beer at a sidewalk stall, but the great majority of the soldiers are teetotaling teen-agers.

Passersby walking past a large pile of rubble in a small park in front of the National Assembly building hardly give it a glance, but they know that a few days ago it was a huge monument to South Vietnamese soldiers.

The monument, showing two soldiers poised to repulse attackers, was one of the first things to go after the takeover.

Sidewalk vendors do a brisk business in Viet Cong flags and portraits of Ho Chi Minh, the late leader of North Vietnam and the mastermind of the war for independence, but those who sold used paperback books from the United States no longer have a market.

The young soldiers in Saigon (almost no one calls it Ho Chi Minh City, as the new regime has suggested) seem to have considerable leisure time, some of which they spend sampling French-style ice cream and American Coca Cola.

Shops have reopened but many of their owners are apprehensive, saying they do not know yet if their establishments will be confiscated by the government.

Some housewives are worried about rice, although the government said in its first news conference Thursday that there will be enough for all.

The conference was held in an ornately carpeted room in the presidential palace under eighteen crystal chandeliers and amidst valuable pottery.

Added to the decor by the victors were a huge Viet Cong flag and a portrait of Ho Chi Minh.

The Communist soldiers, many of whom had spent years fighting in the jungles, seemed quite at home in the posh palace, which like most other large and modern structures in the captured capital, was provided by American taxpayers.

Elderly pay more for care

'Medigap' takes Medicare slack

By MORTON C. PAULSON
Dow Jones-Ortaway News

Are you aware that Medicare paid only 40 per cent of the average medical costs of persons 65 and older in 1973 — and that the proportion is decreasing? Or that today's older Americans are shelling out more from their own pockets for medical, hospital, and surgical services than did their counterparts before Medicare's arrival in 1966?

The federal insurance program never did provide complete protection, and the benefits it does provide are being eroded by inflation. It is "removing less and less of the crushing burden of health costs from the aged," reports Gladys Ellenbogen, an economic consultant to the U.S. Senate Committee on Aging.

For instance, Medicare paid only $15,000 of the $35,000 in bills that resulted from a seven-year bout with cancer. Similar examples abound.

Hence, some 11.5 million of the estimated 20 million Medicare participants have acquired "Medigap," or supplementary health and accident insurance as a shield against financial ruin. Such coverage is available from Blue Cross, Blue Shield and a few commercial carriers.

The mass merchandising of mail-order plans has boomed, but few if any of those that are flamboyantly advertised or peddled door to door really bridge Medicare's shortfalls because they pay only disability income, or pay nothing for illnesses arising from pre-existing conditions, or are limited in other ways.

Not even the true Medigap policies give complete protection, but the better ones are well worth the price. Medicare has deductions and coinsurance features, and it pays nothing at all for some kinds of expenses. The restrictions were written in to hold down premium rates and to discourage freeloading.

If you are hospitalized for instance, you have to pay the first $92 of your bill (up from $84 in 1974 and $42 in 1966) under Medicare's Part A. Under Part B, you pay 80 per cent of your doctor's bill. Among other exclusions are costs of out-of-hospital prescription drugs, long-term nursing care, and dental treatment.

For monthly premiums ranging from $6.45 in Michigan to $15 in Southern California, Blue Cross will fill most of the gaps in Part A and Blue Shield will fill most of them in Part B. These "65" policies as they are generally called, "provide excellent low-cost coverage," says Herbert Denenberg, the former Pennsylvania Insurance Commissioner. Max Fine, executive director of the Committee for National Health Insurance, a public-interest lobby, concurs.

The premium rates vary because of differences in local health care costs and because the policies provide somewhat different benefits. All Blue Cross plans pay the $92 deductible and, for at least 30 days, $23-a-day coinsurance charge that Medicare patients otherwise would pay themselves for hospitalization beyond 60 days.

All Blue Shields plans pay a $60 annual Medicare deductible for physician care and a 20 per cent coinsurance charge for remaining costs, whether or not the patient is hospitalized. Beyond those basics the benefits of both programs differ from place to place.

Of the 12 million persons who have supplementary coverage, about 7.5 million bought it from the Blues. The others are enrolled with various commercial companies. Some of the commercial policies are more comprehensive than those of the Blues, but the premiums are higher.

The Blues, which are non-profit, return about 95 per cent of premium payments in benefits, while the average for private insurers is about 54 per cent. You may want more coverage

Developer settles suit

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Two bureau of Consumer Protection lawsuits were settled out of court Wednesday in agreement with a Pocono Mountains land developer and a Wayne County home improvement contractor.

Towngreen, Inc., developer at Buena Vista Estates, Newfoundland, promised not to use false advertisements and phony contests to promote the sale of homes.

The developer also agreed not to tell purchasers that homesites would be transferred with clear title, or that Towngreen would buy back homesites at a 10 per cent profit.

And James P. Holroyd, in business as Pat & Bud's Rebuilding Service, agreed not to take on any new customers until he has repaid four consumers a total of $857.50 in down payments for work that was never performed.

PUC suspends Pike rate hike

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Public Utility Commission Wednesday suspended electric and gas rate increases Pike County Light & Power Co. wanted to put into effect May 22.

The utility wanted to raise the rates of 2,674 electric customers by $348,400 a year. Charges to 889 gas customers would have climbed by $35,400 annually.

The PUC said its studies indicated those amounts were excessive.

VD epidemic rages among teens

NEW YORK (UPI) — The young people are taking over the venereal disease scene. VD is at epidemic proportions. Every hour of every day in recent years, 23 persons aged 15 through 19 became infected with gonorrhea. That comes near to one every three minutes. Syphilis, which is far more damaging than gonorrhea, affects fewer persons. But those under 25 accounted for close to half of the more than 25,000 new infectious cases of syphilis reported to health authorities in 1973. More than 750,000 new cases of gonorrhea were reported to health authorities that same year. The Public Health Service estimates, however, that the actual number was four times the reported cases. Of the reported total, well over 500,000 cases occurred among persons under 25. Almost half of these were teens and younger, ages 10 to 19. New cases of infectious syphilis, also on an upward swing since 1969 were found in the 20 to 24 age group at the rate of 42.1 per 100,000—the highest rate in any age group. Teen-agers 15 to 19 accounted for over 4,000 new cases. Again, health authorities say the actual number of new cases of syphilis should be multiplied by at least four for the real number. "Throughout the world, venereal diseases have reached epidemic proportions," reports a new publication from the Public Affairs Committee, Inc., a nonprofit educational organization. "Gonorrhea and syphilis are now first and fourth, respectively, in frequency among all reportable diseases in the United States." Jules Saltman, who writes on health and medical subjects, is the author of the publication "VD—Epidemic among Teen-agers." Why the epidemic among the young? Saltman says one reason is simply a matter of numbers. There are more young people than ever before. Saltman cites other reasons: An increase in sexual activity among young people; ignorance among teens about and how to avoid infection; indifference to the dangers: negative attitudes of parents, the public, and medical personnel; physicians' inadequate knowledge about VD; reduced appropriations for VD control; effects of the widespread use of the Pill, with the more relaxed attitude toward sexual activity; and an increase of transmitting through homosexual practices. "Young people are in the greatest danger from venereal diseases," says Saltman, "but young people are also in the best position to protect themselves." Because avoiding infection is "the best line of defense".

Saltman stresses the importance of discriminating in choosing a sex partner. Although there is no sure way to prevent the transfer of bacteria if one partner has VD, these preventive measures can be taken: —Proper use of the condom by the man; by the woman, use of contraceptive foam and certain creams and jellies; washing the genitals thoroughly with a strong soap immediately after the sex act, which may help the male prevent infection.

Young men best shoplift reporters

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — A University of Wyoming research team spent three months in department stores recently stuffing merchandise under their coats and watching the reactions of shoppers. Their report shows young people, particularly young men, are most likely to report a shoplifter. Women from 25 to 65 years of age are more likely to turn their heads and walk away. "We wanted to see how many people would turn in a shoplifter," says Tom Housel, a UW communications instructor. "We'd have one of our guys steal something in front of a shopper, and an observer checked the reaction." The students tested 90 shoppers in department stores and supermarkets. Most store owners contacted cooperated even through some unusual incidents. The students found only about 30 per cent of shoppers tried to stop what appeared to be shoplifters. "It seemed that younger males up to 25 years old were more apt to turn in shoplifters than any other group," Housel said. "The older females from 25-65 got the poorest turning in rate. They did their best to ignore it." Sometimes the student shoplifters were difficult to ignore. Like the time one student stuffed a 15 pound turkey under his coat in front of six people. "They had these big smiles on their faces," Housels said. "They just couldn't believe it." And sometimes the researchers found out more than they expected. "As one of our girls bent over to slide a package of meat in her pocket she looked over at some guy, and he was doing the same thing," Housel said. "She freaked out and we chased the guy around the store but he got away." Two weeks later the research team tested 75 more shoppers the same way. This time they put up signs in the stores asking shoppers for help in nabbing the thieves.

Candidates view airport funding

(EDITOR'S NOTE: With 11 persons running for county commissioner, this canvass by the Concerned Citizens of Monroe County may help voters prepare for the May 20 primary)

STROUDSBURG — A "Canvass of the Candidates" running for county commissioner has been conducted by the Concerned Citizens of Monroe County.

Each of the 11 candidates was asked the same five questions. Six Democrats and five Republicans responded to the questionnaire.

The Democratic candidates are: Raymond E. Davies Sr. of East Stroudsburg R.D. 4; A. John Dodds, Stroud Township; Arlington Martin, Effort; Stuart Pipher, Tannersville; Howard Popkin, Stroudsburg; and Douglas Williams of Saylorsburg.

The Republicans are: Brendan Higgins, Delaware Water Gap; Paul Nauman, Cresco; Jesse Pierson, Stroudsburg; William Quinn, Pocono Lake; and Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, East Stroudsburg R.D. 3.

The fourth question asked was: In addition to the $150,000 already committed by the county, the expansion plan of the Mount Pocono Airport entails spending over $10 million in public funds. If approved, the county taxpayers would be required to pay between $2 million and $3 million of the total expansion cost and be committed to future financial support of the airport as well. What is your position on this issue?

Answers by Democrats were:

— Davies — I am not in favor of any expansion to the airport because: the need for it has not presently been established; the two airports adjacent to Monroe County have had to curtail many flights making the chance of a self-supporting operation very unlikely; the location of the present airport is not conducive to safe landing and take-offs of larger aircraft; and the people of the area have not been given a chance to decide on the subject.

— Dodds — I am opposed to the use of county tax money to support or aid in the expansion of the airport because the people of this county voted that tax money should not be so misused. I consider the referendum morally and ethically binding. The adoption of a Home Rule Charter would make such a referendum legally binding.

— Martin — I am waiting for a public hearing.

— Pipher — I am opposed to the use of county tax monies to support or aid in the expansion of this airport.

— Popkin — I am opposed to using county tax money for the expansion or support of the airport.

— Williams — I am opposed to using county money for the expansion but I would have to take a second look at this proposal if the 172-acre tract of land adjacent to the airport should become an industrial tract. Monroe County needs the light industry that would be attracted and an adequate airport to serve their transportation needs.

Answers by Republicans were:

— Higgins — I am opposed to the use of county tax money to support or aid in the expansion of this airport.

— Nauman — I am opposed to the use of county money to aid in the expansion of the airport.

— Pierson — For most people there have been some questions left unanswered which I am hopeful might be cleared up at the public hearing scheduled for May 15. At a previous meeting, I found no compelling reason for the county to provide funds for a major expansion. However, the airport is a public trust which should not be abandoned.

— Quinn — It is impossible to answer this question as it is worded because there is no such commitment by the county to spend "between $2 million and $3 million of the total expansion costs and to be committed to future financial support as well."

— Shukaitis — I am opposed to the use of county tax monies to support or aid in the expansion of this airport.

Housewife finds county unable to stop occupation tax

By FLIP DeLUCA
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A Kunkletown housewife Thursday brought her protest over paying $6 per year occupation tax to the Monroe County Commissioners who agreed the tax is unfair but said they could do little to help.

Mrs. Mary Nagele was told that even though the occupation tax was abolished on the county level, the townships and school districts have the option to retain the tax.

Mrs. Nagele said she would ask the Pleasant Valley School Board to eliminate the tax for housewives when the board meets next Thursday.

William Fetherman, chief assessor of Monroe County said the taxing body, in this case the school district, has the option to grant exceptions to persons whose income is under $2,000 a year. "But the county has no power to make the school district or municipality drop it," he added.

Fetherman said there is nothing to prevent Mrs. Nagele from filing an appeal with the county Board of Assessment Appeals prior to Sept. 1. The commissioners, who serve on the appeals board, said any decision made at that time would set a precedent.

County solicitor Elmer D. Christine declined comment on whether the county can abolish the housewife assessment collected by the school district saying he didn't want to prejudice any future ruling he may be required to make as solicitor for the appeal board.

Mrs. Nagele and her husband Joseph, along with Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Ronemus, presented the commissioners with a petition containing 656 signatures of people opposed to the occupation tax for housewives.

Nearly two-thirds of those names were from persons living in the Pleasant Valley School district, one of two districts in the county which still use the occupation tax to generate revenue.

Mrs. Nagele said she objects to paying the occupational assessment tax for housewives. According to a county manual, a housewife is taxed on an estimated income of $60 a month.

"A Housewife is not recognized as a paid occupation insofar as she is not covered by social security, sick pay and unemployment insurance," Mrs. Nagele said.

"If I'm taxed as having an occupation, then my husband could lay me off and I could collect unemployment," she said.

Her husband added that he is assessed four separate taxes that go to the school district. He said a two per cent borough tax, his occupation tax, his wife's occupation tax and his property tax all go to support the school district. "And there are a lot of seasonal people who don't pay the tax," he added.

Commissioner William Quinn said, "There is no way you can administer this tax fairly in any category." He suggested the school districts consider a wage tax to replace the occupation tax. "The only fair way is to tax on actual income."

Quinn also said if an exemption is made for housewives, students, retired persons and the unemployed should also be considered.

Fetherman told Mrs. Nagele that the county would like to see the occupation tax abolished completely because the law requires the county administer it which costs money. He suggested that Mrs. Nagele encourage the state legislators to approve laws banning the tax.

Doctor not guilty in suit

Special to The Record

SCRANTON — After three hours of deliberation Thursday, a U.S. Middle District Court jury returned a verdict of not guilty in a malpractice suit against a local physician and the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The nine-member panel ruled in favor of Dr. Marshall Metzgar and the hospital in the $75,000 suit by Morris and Virginia Nikirk of East Meadows, N.Y.

On two occasions during the deliberations, the jury returned to the courtroom of the U.S. Middle District Judge Malcolm Muir and reported they were deadlocked. The judge told them to continue deliberating and they reached a verdict in favor of the defendants at 5:30 p.m.

The trial began May 6 on the suit which alleged that Dr. Metzgar was negligent in failing to detect a fracture of the femur at the point where it joined the hip in Nikirk. It also alleged that X-rays were of inferior quality.

The jury did find one point in favor of the plaintiffs but awarded no money. The jury ruled that when Nikirk was in the hospital and his roommate suffered a heart attack, Nikirk was getting out of bed when hospital employees brought emergency equipment into the room, pushing Nikirk's bed against a wall, causing the plaintiff to hit his knees on the wall.

The jury decided that although the incident showed negligence on the part of the hospital, it did not contribute to the hip injury.

No local slowdown at hospital

STROUDSBURG — Physicians at the General Hospital of Monroe County did not participate in a work slowdown Thursday which was spreading from Lehigh Valley hospitals.

A hospital spokesman said there had not been a slowdown of services and that "the operating room schedule was not curtailed in any way."

Doctors in the Lehigh Valley area began withholding services for one day as a protest against rising malpractice insurance rates.

Only emergency surgery was performed at some Bucks County and Lehigh Valley hospitals where the slowdown was led by anesthesiologists.

Mobile station proposed

State police stay in Pike

By STEVE DRACHLER
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — Pike County's state police contingent will move after May 31, but not to Dunmore as residents and county officials feared.

Instead, the 22 troopers now based in Milford will probably operate out of a mobile command center on the site of a new police substation in Lords Valley, Blooming Grove Township.

State Rep. William W. Foster, R-Wayne, told Pike County commissioners Thursday an agreement has been reached between KMR Associates Inc., of Lords Valley and the state's Bureau of Property and Supplies.

"I talked to Mr. Patterson (Gerald Patterson, director of state police staff services) this afternoon and he told me they are about to come to an agreement on the lease," Foster said.

"He (Patterson) has given me assurance they (state police) will not be moving to Dunmore as originally planned."

A Property and Supplies spokesman said Thursday no formal agreement has been reached, but he confirmed that KMR Associates has submitted a new bid, matching the figure the bureau's board of commissioners for grounds and buildings offered Wednesday.

On Wednesday the bureau rejected the proposed lease of a building from KMR on the grounds the firm wanted too high a price for rent.

"I want to emphasize it is not settled yet," said the spokesman. "The board will have to vote upon the offer at variances to reduce the number of parking spaces from the required 320 to 251 and the distance between some dwelling units from 50 to 24 feet. The hearing was continued to 7 p.m. May 29.

The board also heard a request for a reinstatement of non-conforming use from Ronald Joachim, who wants to build a Pizza by Pappas restaurant at 265 Prospect St.

Joachim argued since former owner of the property, Glenn Detrick, had obtained a non-conforming use for his restaurant in the residential zone, Joachim should be granted the variance.

When asked by Smith what parking was available, Joachim said the same parking is available now as when Detrick was granted the non conforming use.

But Board attorney Bernard M. Billick said the burned-out foundation has not been used as a commercial establishment for more than 12 months. After that period, according to the borough's zoning ordinance, the property reverts to residential, he said.

Architects were requesting paid for by revenue sharing. The commissioners also noted that a special informational meeting on energy parks will be conducted by the county at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 28 in the courthouse. The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint county residents with energy parks so they can speak effectively at a state meeting scheduled for June 2 at East Stroudsburg High School.

The commissioners also said they have received verbal notice from William H. Robinson Jr. that he will resign his position as public defender effective June 13.

The commissioners also noted that about 50 elderly persons attended the opening of the Brodheadsville branch for the county Office for Aging Wednesday.

Housing complex impact worries Eastburg

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Borough Council and architects for a proposed 241-unit housing complex in East Stroudsburg have agreed to meet to determine whether the area can support over 50 units of housing for the aged.

The meeting was requested by Borough Manager Donald C. Gage during a hearing Thursday night into whether the East Stroudsburg Zoning Hearing Board should grant two variances to developers of the elderly housing, Aspen Village.

The complex is proposed for an area encompassing the Leader tract on Greentree Drive.

In a statement to the board, Gage said borough councilmen are concerned the proposed 241-units may compete with federal rent-subsidized housing the borough has proposed in its community development program.

Gage cautioned his statement was not a denunciation of the project by developer Joseph Barnes and Son, Inc. of Wharrington. (The proposed housing would be subsidized by the federal department of Housing and Urban Development. Persons over 62 would pay what rent they could afford, and HUD would pay the difference between that and the fair market value to the developer.)

Gage said the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 that regulates this type of housing is new and not thoroughly understood. He suggested councilmen and archiitects Christifer Portner and Dale Roth of Bethlehem compare market surveys to determine if the area can support the additional 241 units of housing for the elderly.

Architects agreed to the meeting, a time for which was not specified.

Gage pointed out there are 40 units of elderly housing in the borough's Avon Court, hundreds of units in East Stroudsburg and the Stofflet Street urban renewal plans and 241 in the Aspen project, bringing the total to over 500.

Hearing board Chairman Carl A. Smith questioned architects whether, if the area cannot support all 241 units, the units not taken by the elderly could be rented to other people. "Yes," Roth said.

Terms set for Manor sale

STROUDSBURG — In a 2-1 vote, the Monroe County Commissioners Thursday accepted an offer by the county Industrial Development Authority to buy Pleasant Valley Manor for $1.2 million and to seek permission of the court for the transaction.

Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, commission chairman, voted against the resolution saying she had been opposed to the sale of the manor all along.

Smoky fire forces couple out

STROUDSBURG — A smoky, morning fire forced a Stroud Township couple from their home but caused only minor damage Thursday.

Stroud Township fire chief Ray Silver said Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall were forced from their Mount Zion Road home when smoke filled their house.

Stroud Township police and the Marshalls' son, who lives across the street, helped Marshall from the house. Firemen administered oxygen to the couple.

Silver said the fire was reported at 6:20 a.m. when Mrs. Marshall woke and discovered smoke in the bedroom.

The fire was located in a couch in the basement and a rug, lamp and other furnishings, Silver said.

Firemen carried the couch from the house and used a de-smoker and fans to clear the rooms. Silver said the fire and smoke caused "minimal" damage.

Eight trucks and 40 senior and five junior firemen were at the scene for an hour. The cause is unknown.

The industrial authority offered to purchase the present county nursing facility, its contents and almost 15 acres of land from the county for $1,247,095, payable in equal annual installments without interest over a 30-year period beginning in 1977.

"The authority's offer to purchase is conditioned upon the receipt of all legally required approvals, including the approval from the Secretary of Commerce, and the consummation of the financing required to implement the project."

The transfer of the home to a non-profit corporation and construction of a 61-bed addition is to be financed through a $5 million bond issue.

County solicitor Elmer D. Christine was directed to petition the Court of Common Pleas of Monroe County on behalf of the commissioners, seeking authorization to sell the property.

In other action Thursday, the commissioners received a copy of a letter sent to Gov. Milton Shapp by Mrs. William Booth of Stroudsburg R.D. 1 protesting the "indiscriminate spreading of raw liquid sewage on a questionable site in Hamilton Township."

Mrs. Booth claimed she had been given "a run around" by the state Department of Environmental Resources when she asked if an area waste hauler had a permit to dump in the township.

In other matters, the commissioners approved purchase of a $1,496 alarm system for the Community Building at the First Ward Park for Maximum Security Alarms. The commissioners noted the building has already been burglarized once during renovations and said they want to protect their investment. The alarm is to be paid for by revenue sharing. The commissioners also noted that a special informational meeting on energy parks will be conducted by the county at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 28 in the courthouse. The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint county residents with energy parks so they can speak effectively at a state meeting scheduled for June 2 at East Stroudsburg High School.

The commissioners also said they have received verbal notice from William H. Robinson Jr. that he will resign his position as public defender effective June 13.

The commissioners also noted that about 50 elderly persons attended the opening of the Brodheadsville branch for the county Office for Aging Wednesday.

Voters quiz DelVal school candidates

STROUDSBURG — It was planned as a public forum for Delaware Valley School Board candidates, but campaign promises, pledges and platforms took a back seat Thursday night to pointed questioning from local residents.

Sponsored by the school district PTA, the forum was designed to give eight school board candidates an opportunity to outline their views on issues facing the school district.

Six of the eight candidates attended the meeting and gave short, five-minute speeches. However, most of the evening was monopolized by residents asking questions on the proposed vocational-technical school, the community college, and the district's long-range building program.

Several residents, opposed to a recent school board decision, that rejected a public referendum on the community college issue, also questioned candidates on how they would have voted on the issue.

Incumbent Kent Ryder of Matamoras, who voted against the referendum, said he supported the community college concept after learning it would not become "Just another degree factory."

He termed the community college "an umbrella concept" in education that would use existing facilities at no additional cost to the taxpayer.

Incumbent Vincent McEvoy of Matamoras was the only school board member who favored a petition by residents that would have placed the community college issue on a public referendum.

In response to one individual's question on how to get more people involved in school board decisions, McEvoy said, "If we won't listen to you (the public) in a petition with over 800 signatures, I really think we should be worried on how to get people involved."

Paul Shenker, candidate from Milford, called for a higher educational standards in the district, noting that many of the students he talked with were reading below their grade levels.

In a comment that sparked considerable debate, Shenker said the school board should act as an adversary to Dr. S. William Ricker, school superintendent.

Terming Ricker as both "legislator and administrator" of the school district, Shenker said the board should question and evaluate all issues before approving every proposal by the superintendent.

"Dr. Ricker is an excellent administrator and I have no quarrel with his personality, but I question his function." At one point during the meeting when comments were made on Ricker's role during the last fall's school strike and his subsequent rapport with faculty members, Ryder defended Ricker and said, "A man's personality should not be raked over the coals when he's not present."

Shenker later responded, "I'm not shooting down Ricker's personality. I'm shooting down Ricker's function. This school board has to be a wall once in a while. They have to say 'Hold it. Bill Ricker, ask for something first.'"

John Padalino of Dingman's Ferry outlined a five point program for the district, stating there was a need on the part of the board to respond to local community needs.

He pledged to improve understanding within the district and seek insights into the community.

Beverly Marinaccio of Milford also called for the community to work together to make the district number one educationally.

Johan Sletner of Milford said he could devote time to the office of school director, noting that he had three children in the district and had a deep concern for education. Sletner supported Shenker on most educational issues and joined Shenker in criticizing Ricker for his handling of the strike in September.

Sletner said a neutral negotiator should have been brought in to settle the contract differences between the teachers and the school board.

Incumbent Herman Davis and candidate Robert Lindqvist, both of Matamoras, did not attend the meeting that attracted a small turnout of about 50 people.

PTA member Tom Smart read a prepared speech from Davis that outlined the incumbent's support for school building programs, community college and vo-tech school.

All candidates have cross-filed.

Ali predicts Lyle will fall on home TV tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali has another prediction about his heavy-weight title bout with Ron Lyle Friday night.

In addition to the pronouncement that challenger Lyle will "fall in eight," Ali declared that "there won't be no traffic on the roads anywhere in the country. Streets will be deserted, everybody will be inside their homes, in bars and in restaurants. They'll be watchin' me, the greatest fighter of all time, and it won't cost them nuthin'."

That's how Ali sees the impact his latest fight will have because it marks his first time on home television since he fought Karl Mildenberger of West Germany, Sept. 10, 1966, in Frankfurt. To see him in action live since then, the tariff has been as high as $250 at ringside and up to $50 for a closed circuit television seat.

The last time the public saw the heavyweight championship for free was when Joe Frazier easily defeated Ron Stander in 1972, and that one made only a slight ripple in TV ratings.

There probably will be more than a slight ripple when the home screens glow with Ali. The ratings should be such that Ali will have added another boast to his long list—that of drawing the largest audience for a fight in television history.

The 300-mile area surrounding this gambling paradise will be blacked out, but there is always more interest here in other things than prize fighting. The bout will be held in the 7,700 seat Convention Center where tickets are scaled from $100 to $12. If the center is filled to capacity, the gate will net $390,000, but there is some doubt that will be achieved.

However, neither Lyle or Ali can be hurt financially. Ali gets his $1 million, Lyle his $100,000 and expenses, while television (ABC at 9 p.m. EDT) has sold 18 commercial minutes for the 2½ hour show, at an asking price of $100,000 per minute. Lyle's qualification as a challenger are somewhat better than those which Chuck Wepner offered in March. But only somewhat.

The 33-year-old ex-convict, who served a 7½ year stretch in the Colorado State prison for second degree murder resulting from a teen-age gang fight, started boxing while in prison. He was national AAU champion in 1970 and turned professional the following year.

Lyle's record is 30-2-1. The draw was with Greg Perella while his two losses came against the now retired Jerry Quarry and in a startling upset to Jimmy Young in Honolulu last March.

There is little difference in their physical makeup. Lyle holds a half inch advantage in height at 6 feet 3½ inches, but Ali has a three inch advantage in reach and this surely will be a decisive factor in the outcome.

How long will it last? Not exactly repudiating his round prediction, Ali says he must give that large TV audience a show, a show that will last long enough to get those commercials in while there is still live action on the screen and before technicians resort to tape of previous Ali bouts.

The telecast will open with a scheduled 10-round between Victor Galindez, the WBA champion from Argentina, and Ray Elson, an unbeaten, untested and unranked New Yorker.

Barber's goal opens gates as Flyers go one-up, 4-1

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Bill Barber caught goalie Gerry Desjardins looking the wrong way to break a scoreless deadlock in the opening minutes of the third period Thursday night and Ross Lonsberry and Bobby Clarke followed with power play goals to lift the hard-pressed Philadelphia Flyers to a 4-1 victory over the Buffalo Sabres in the opening game of their Stanley Cup championship series.

Barber added his second goal with 58 seconds left in the game after Buffalo had removed its goaltender.

Until Barber scored his fifth goal of the playoffs 3:42 into the final session, only the sensational goaltending of Bernie Parent kept Philadelphia in the game. The Flyers were hopelessly frustrated by a surprisingly tight checking Buffalo defense for the first two periods.

The defending Cup champions didn't get their first shot on goal until 11:20 of the game had elapsed and they managed only one more shot on Desjardins the rest of the period. Philadelphia didn't do much better in the second period, at the end of which time Buffalo had a 22-10 advantage in shots.

Desjardins made the first mistake, though, when a drive by Flyer defenseman Ed Vanimpe deflected off the boards to his left. Desjardins looked first for the rebound to his right and with the puck coming out on the left side, Barber sent the puck into the net before the Buffalo goaltender could recover.

The one goal seemed to open the door as Lonsberry followed four minutes later by sending in a short backhand on a rebound of a point drive by Tom Bladen.

Rick Martin finally broke Parent's bid for a fourth shutout in the current playoffs when he scored during a Buffalo power play at 11:07. Clarke, the team captain and inspirational leader of the Flyers, restored the two goal lead just 34 seconds later with the prettiest goal of the evening.

Dave Schultz of Philadelphia, taking a double minor in the second period, broke John Ferguson's career playoff record for penalty minutes.

Tug wins one, saves one in Phillies' sweep of Reds

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tug McGraw turned in a pair of sparkling relief appearances Thursday night to help the Philadelphia Phillies take a doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds, 6-3 and 5-3.

McGraw hurled two scoreless innings to pick up the save in the nightcap after winning the opener when Ollie Brown hit a three-run homer in the ninth.

Gene Garber got the win in the nightcap when the Phillies scored an unearned run in the seventh. Dave Cash was safe on an error by Dave Concepcion, took third on Larry Bowa's fourth straight single and scored when Garry Maddox grounded out.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the first when Cash doubled, moved up on a bunt single by Bowa and came home when Maddox grounded into a double-play.

Cincinnati got two in the fifth when Clay Kirby singled with two out and scored on a double by Pete Rose. Ken Griffey then singled to score Rose.

Greg Luzinski opened the sixth with his eighth home run to tie it, then the Phillies used a single by Tommy Hutton and Mike Schmidt's double to go ahead 3-2.

The Reds tied it in the seventh when Dave Concepcion singled, took second when pinchhitter Terry Crowley flied to center, and scored on Rose's single to left.

McGraw hurled two scoreless innings of relief to pick up the victory in the first game. The Reds went into the ninth leading 3-2, but Don Gullett walked Luzinski to open the inning and Cesar Geronimo dropped Dick Allen's liner for a two-base error. Mike Schmidt was intentionally walked and the Phillies tied the game when pinch runner Terry Harmon scored as Bob Boone grounded into a doubleplay. Mike Anderson was intentionally walked, then pinch hitter Brown connected for his first homer of the season to win it.

Gilmore's hook nips Pacers

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Artis Gilmore hooked in the winning basket with two seconds to play and the officials nullified a 40-foot shot by Bill Keller right after the final buzzer Thursday night to give the Kentucky Colonels a 95-93 victory over the Indiana Pacers and a 2-0 lead in the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Coach Bob Leonard and the Indiana players stormed after the officials at the end of the game, protesting that Keller had launched his long-range basket before the buzzer sounded.

However, referees Ed Rush and Norm Drucker remained firm in their stand that the shot was too late.

Gilmore, held scoreless through the last half by Indiana's sagging defense, got open for a sweeping lefthand hook shot and a winning bucket to give him 12 points for the game.

Drives in four runs; Brewers take suspended game

Aaron keys 8-3 Brewers' victory

ARLINGTON (UPI) — Hank Aaron drove in four runs Thursday night with a sacrifice fly and a three-run homer—the 737th of his career—to power Milwaukee to an 8-5 victory over Texas.

Earlier in the evening, the Rangers, 3-2, concluding a game suspended Wednesday night. Jackie Brown hit Don Money with a pitch to force in the winning run in the 15th inning.

In the regularly scheduled game, Pete Broberg, facing his former teammates for the first time, won his sixth game against three losses.

Aaron boosted his career RBI total to 2,218 by driving in Bill Sharp from third with a long fly to center in the first inning and then blasting a ball deep into the leftfield seats with Bob Mitchell and George Scott aboard in the fifth.

In the suspended game, which was halted by a curfew

Wednesday night after 14 innings, Brown walked Aaron to start the 15th. Aaron was replaced by pinch runner Rob Ellis, who was sacrificed to second by Lezcano. Was moved

Twins, 7-6

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Rod Carew singled home the winning run with two out in the ninth inning and scored two others Thursday night to give the Minnesota Twins a 7-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Carew's single up the middle came after Steve Braun walked and was replaced by pinch-runner Dan Ford.

The Indians tied the score at 6-6 with four runs in the sixth, the highlights being a pair of homers—a solo shot by Jack Brohamer and two-run blast by Boog Powell—plus a run-scoring double by Ed Crosby.

Kuchinskas hurls ESSC to 8-0 'World' victory

OMAHA, Neb. — Freshman Lynn Kuchinskas hurls a three-hit shutout, striking out three and walking none as East Stroudsburg State College crushed the University of Ohio at Athens, 8-0 in the opening round of the World Intercollegiate Softball Tournament, Thursday.

Kuchinskas got plenty of offensive backing, led by Laura Barrall and Terry Ricker each with two hits.

ESSC scored all eight runs in the first two innings. After Barrall and Ricker both reached base on bunt singles in the first, Lynn Dawson's sacrifice moved them up one base. A wild pitch by Ohio University's Lois Crabtree allowed both runners to score.

In the second the Warriors sent 12 batters to the plate as a walk and two singles loaded the bases with one out. Dawson's two-run single and Colleen Stuppy's sacrifice accounted for three runs.

Back to back singles, driving in the fourth and again loaded fifth runs of the inning and a walk to Kuchinskas again loaded the bases. Another base on balls forced in the sixth and final run of the frame.

The tournament, which is open to teams all over the world, is a four-day event with the championship game scheduled for Sunday at 4:30 p.m. (EDT). ESSC advanced to the second round and faced the University of Arizona late Thursday night.

EAST STROUDSBURG — Larry House and Ron Wiener combined on a three-hitter and Scott Dietrick belted a two-run double in a five-run Northwestern first inning Thursday as the Tigers defeated East Stroudsburg, 10-2.

The Cavaliers, now 9-7, didn't get their first hit until Randy Seese's ground-rule double in the sixth inning.

In the first, Wiener singled, Mike Weber walked and Dave Oswald scored Wiener with a single. An error on the hit allowed Weber and Oswald to move up a base and Weber scored on Todd Schellhamer's sacrifice fly.

Dietrick then added two more runs with his double and Mike Mantz followed with a single to score Dietrick. Weber later added another run for Northwestern with a solo home run in the fifth.

The Cavaliers scored once in the second without a hit. Seese walked and took second on House's wild pickoff throw. Lou Nase and Chico Carmella walked before Woody Heeter scored the run with a sacrifice fly.

Pinch-runner Wayne Freeman scored the second run in the seventh on a Dave Beck single after Ed Lyons had collected the second hit.

DeBusschere vows effort to help ABA-NBA merger

strong ownership by June 1," Brown said. "We've already taken all the action we can take with them."

It is in the economic best interests of both leagues to work out a merger agreement, most owners agree, and, while former Democratic Party chief Larry O'Brien has the apparent task of persuading his former colleagues to pass the appropriate legislation on behalf of the NBA owners, DeBusschere may have been charged with the responsibility of making the players believe in the virtues of merger.

Historically it has been the NBA players, however, not the ABA players who have refused to ratify a merger agreement unless the owners gave up the reserve clause that presently binds a player to one team even beyond the years he actually signs to play for that team. Similarly, it has been the NBA owners, not the ABA owners, who have emphasized the need for the controversial clause.

If O'Brien is unable to make Congress or the NBA owners budge, a merger is still possible if DeBusschere can provide the leadership for a more conciliatory attitude on the part of the players in general.

"I know Larry O'Brien," DeBusschere said, "but I think he'll have a lot more influence in Washington than I will. I have better contacts on the basketball floor with the players and coaches. I'm not sure there's any relationship between our both being hired around the same time, but I'm sure we'll have conversations and maybe we'll be able to work well together."

Success has always come early to the ruggedly handsome DeBusschere and the $75,000 a year, 10-year contract he held as Nets general manager will be replaced by a multi-year contract as commissioner calling for a salary estimated from $100,000-$125,000.

Hosley's double in 8th gives Cubs 4-2 victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tim Hosley lined a double down the left field line scoring Jerry Morales and Pete LaCock in the bottom of the eighth inning Thursday to lift the Chicago Cubs and Rick Reuschel to a 4-2 decision over the Houston Astros.

Hosley's double, on a one strike count, came after Houston loser James Rodney Richard had walked Morales and given up a hit to LaCock. Hosley's hit was only the fifth off the Houston righthander who was tagged with his second loss against three wins.

Reuschel, who had a no-hitter going until two were out in the sixth inning, permitted just three hits while walking two and striking out five as he evened his record at 3-3.

Casper, Nelson fire 67s, share New Orleans lead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Old pro Billy Casper Thursday shook off a case of the flu that almost chased him from the tournament to shoot a five-under-par 67 for a tie in the $150,000 New Orleans Open.

Casper said his stomach flu earlier in the week almost forced him to withdraw from the tournament. He made three birdies on the front nine, and added three more on the back for his 67 and a tie with Acworth, Ga., pro Larry Nelson, 27.

Nelson finished fourth in the Byron Nelson Classic last week in Dallas and fifth two weeks ago in the Houston Open.

Nelson had three birdies and a 33 on the front nine and two birdies and a 34 on the back for his 67.

Five pros playing the wet 7,080-yard, par 72 Lakewood Country Club course were four-under-par at 68, Mike Morley, Allen Miller, Peter Oosterhaus, Gary Sanders and Danny Edwards. Seven players were two strokes back at 69.

"I'm playing with more confidence than ever before," Nelson said. "I've gotten to the place with my game where I don't worry about it any more. I take it one shot at a time and I've been able to block everything else out."

Casper, who has been off the tour for the last three weeks, said, "One of the keys to my success has been being able to get away from golf for two or three weeks. Lately, I haven't been able to do that."

Lee Trevino, defending tournament champion who set a course record of 21 under par last year, finished the first round with a 37-35-72 at even par. Trevino predicted Wednesday he would not be able to match the record he set last year, and the muddy course and bad putting proved him right.

"I hit the ball pretty good," he said. "But I dig after the

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Some opportunities indicated that could be overlooked if you are not on the beam, not using your mental capacities to their fullest. Keep aims and hopes high.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Don't cross others without ample reason. It may turn out best if you wait a bit before making decisions, give time for added factors to appear.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — You may gain a little here, lose a little there, but the overall picture is one of advancement. A strong Mercury day stimulates ingenuity, alert moves, quick thinking.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — A day in which you could raise your score considerably. That is, if you make the best use of your numerous talents. Just one admonition: Avoid haste!

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Curb tendencies to procrastinate. Handle all matters in the order of their importance. Evening hours excellent for social activities and romance.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Some complications indicated in business matters. Don't let false pride keep you from asking advice if you're unable to cope.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — A period for reevaluation. Try to learn just where you stand in relation to other persons, especially competitors. Take nothing — and no one — for granted.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Whatever your plans, take into account new trends and ideas and, if necessary, change maneuvers to fit the current picture. Be dauntless, ready for the unexpected.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Emotionalism or temperamentalism could get you into trouble if not careful. Self-control needed — especially in romantic situations.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Keep on your toes now. A competitive factor of which you are unaware could be building up. Watch, too, for some tricky maneuvering.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — You may encounter some difficult persons, even run into unexpected opposition. Remain tactful, tolerant and affable, and storms will blow over.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Some new insight could lead to higher achievement or bigger profits now. A fine Neptune aspect stimulates perceptiveness, intuition.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great determination, a fine intellect and a tremendous awareness of other persons and their needs. You also have a lively imagination and a great love of beauty and tradition; could excel at almost any of the arts but, notably, in painting, music or literature — all or any of which would bear the stamp of your strong intellectual prowess.

The bidding has been:

North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♦
2 ♠ 3 ♦ 4 ♠

You lead the king of diamonds, East playing the two and South the four. What would you play now?

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump and North leads the queen of diamonds, South playing the seven. How would you play the hand?

1. It is an important principle of defense that you don't credit declarer with a hand that renders the contract impregnable. Instead, you concentrate on hands consistent with the bidding that allow the contract to be stopped.

Thus, to assign your partner the K-J-x of clubs and ace of spades is a sound enough hypothesis on the bidding, but that is not a good reason for playing a club at trick two. South would make the contract in such case because your king of hearts is finessable and he would lose, at most, a spade, a diamond and a club.

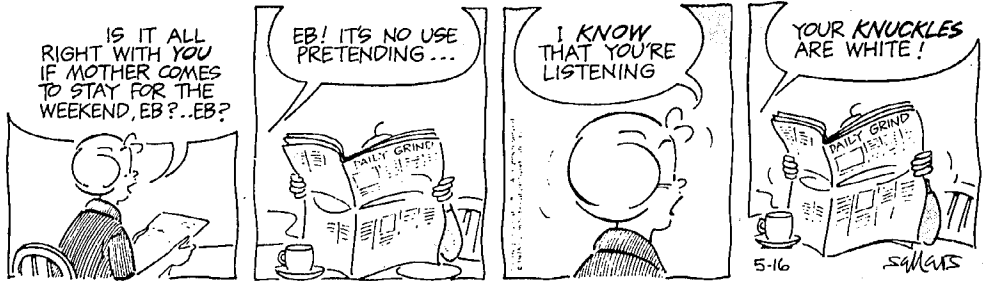

It is far better to credit partner with the ace of spades and queen of hearts, because that holding gives you a good chance to beat the contract by leading the king of hearts at trick two. This play will prove enormously effective if declarer has something like:
♠ K Q 8 6 2 ♥ 7 6 4 3 ♦ Q 4 ♣ K J
South goes down one, losing a spade, a heart, a heart ruff and a diamond.

2. The only question is whether to play for a 3-3 heart division or rely on a spade finesse.

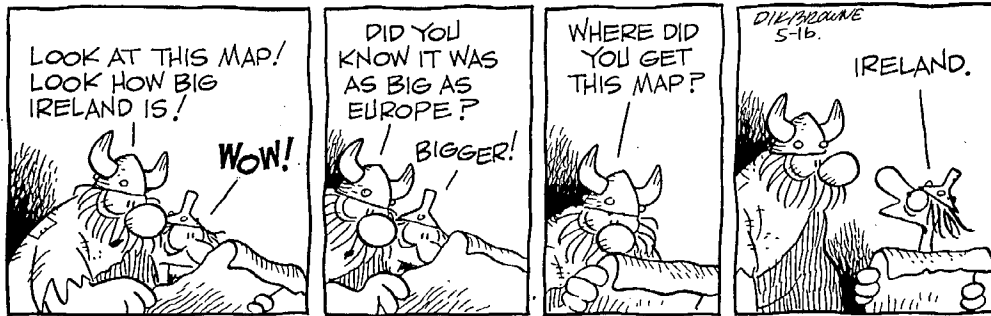

There is a 50 per cent chance of finding North with the king of spades, but only a 36 per cent chance of a 3-3 heart break. You should therefore go with the odds and put your chips on the spade finesse.

Jack Cassidy emerging from wife's, son's shadows

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Cassidy has spent most of his talented life in the shadow of his own family and only now is coming into his own.

For more than 15 years he was Shirley Jones' husband in the public mind. You know, the handsome blond guy who popped up in movies and television now and then.

Then, just as Jack was beginning to emerge from the image of being a movie star's spouse, along came "The Partridge Family" starring his son by a previous marriage, David Cassidy.

It was a double whammy. Costarred in the weekly situation comedy with David was, of all people, Shirley Jones.

Now Jack suffered an ambivalent identity crisis.

The public had a choice, David's father or Shirley's husband. Youngsters preferred the former. Traditionalists stayed with Shirley's husband.

A proud Irishman of considerable theatrical background, Cassidy neither basked in the reflected glory of his wife nor passed out cigars on behalf of his offspring.

Nor was he ever heard to complain that Shirley and David put a crimp in his own career.

Rather, he smiled—perhaps a bit tautly—and hung in there.

"The Partridge Family" was cancelled last year and while Shirley has been working in television movies she is less visible on the tube than before. As for David, it is almost as if he'd stepped into a manhole. Zap, he's disappeared.

Jack currently is guest starring for the third time in an episode of "Columbo."

He will portray John Barrymore, the Great Profile, in Universal's "W. C. Fields and Me" starring Rod Steiger in the title role.

Moreover, he has a fat part in "The Eiger Sanction," Clint Eastwood's new thriller which will be released later this month.

"Ah, yes," said Jack Cassidy, "I am a late bloomer."

"All that identification with Shirley and David is changing at last. In New York, however, in theater circles I was and am better known for my own work than I was in the rest of the country."

Since his divorce from Shirley earlier this year Jack's career as well as his identity have turned around dramatically.

"I've cleared house since the divorce," Jack said. "I got rid of my manager and formed Richmond Hill Productions, my own company. And I did 'Knuckle' for the Public Broadcasting System."

"I've never been so busy, which I attribute to the culmination of a lot of things that have been cooking for me."

One of the reasons Cassidy was cast as Barrymore is an astonishing similarity of profile to the late, great star.

"People have told me all my life that I looked like Barrymore," Cassidy said. "Even his sister Ethel."

"When I was a chorus boy in New York back in 1945 I asked her for an autograph backstage one day. She said, 'You look like my brother.' I was tempted to ask if she meant Lionel."

Jack isn't worried about being identified in the future as the guy who played Barrymore. But maybe, just possibly, David will be known as Jack's son and Shirley Jones as Jack's ex-wife.

Area course round-up

Glen Brook's 16 leads course changes

STROUDSBURG — Anyone who has ever stepped to the tee on number 16 at Glen Brook Country Club, pulled what he or she thought was exactly the right stick from the bag and then smote it over the green, your day is coming.

Glen Brook has undertaken to build a bank on the top of the green to keep many of those well-hit tee shots that used to bounce on and then over the green up there within putting distance of a deuce.

Manager Bill Dimity explained that the area will be built up and re-sodded and eventually the problem of bouncing one on and over should be eliminated.

That will help the golfer's psyche and it will help his score and club condition. He'll have a better mental attitude before playing the hole, he'll put the club back in the bag after hitting a shot that stays up there and he not fling the said stick if he bounces over.

His score will remain down and so will his damper.

Glen Brook has also filled in a swale in front of the green on the par-four third hole. Time was when this area would catch a lot of second shots, but now they'll bound up toward the green. Dimity said the area will be filled in to eliminate the swale and eliminate drainage problems.

Glen Brook has also re-done its lockerroom facilities for the men, laying in a new carpet and painting the lockers. A group of 12 new electric carts has been added to the club's fleet. Cart paths will be put in on the tenth and eleventh holes where they did not exist before.

Also new at Glen Brook this season is assistant pro Steve Menhennitt, who takes over for departing Gary Dennis.

Menhennitt, a Bangor resident, took a shot last year at opening qualifications for the Tournament Players Division's school which is held annually to allow players a chance to compete for a player's card and join the professional tour.

But Menhennitt, who won the Glen Brook club championship in 1973, had tough luck in a windy South Carolina and now will serve as an assistant at Glen Brook.

Dave Halliwell is greens superintendent at the club.

Buck Hill

BUCK HILL FALLS — Buck Hill Falls, one of the oldest and prettiest courses in the Poconos, has another heavy tournament schedule planned for this 1975 golf season.

From May 30 through June 1, a group of 100 golfers will compete in a tournament held by the Tower Terran Foster group. That's the first big group for the season, but there are others, too.

There are also a large amount of member-related club tournaments on the schedule.

The annual Spencer Jones Memorial, a member-guest tournament, will be held the weekend of July 11, 12 and 13. The Herbert Tily Memorial, which is the member-member tournament, will be held August 9 and 10.

Buck Hill will again play host to an Eastern Seniors Golf Championship. Last summer, the club played host to the women's championship, while this summer Buck Hill will host the men's tournament.

Action in the tournament, which features golfers aged 55 years or above, takes place

September 2 through 4.

Getting back to the large groups, Textile Distributors will be bringing in a group of 200 golfers for golfing June 10 through 13 and Ottaway News Service will be holding its annual bash June 26-29.

Steve Pembroke is golf professional at the club, assisted by Vinnie Ciarlone and Dirk Zondag.

The club also plays host to the annual Highland Inn Open, a tournament held twice annually. The spring tourney will be held Sunday in a better-ball-of-partners concept and an individual tournament will be held in September.

Shawnee

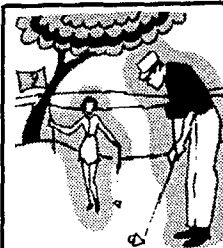

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE — Internationally-known teaching professional Dick Farley and his "The Swing's The Thing" are back at Shawnee.

Farley returns to Shawnee after being away for a few years and has already got the schedule packed with tournaments at the famous club.

A "Celebrity Tournament" which will feature names from the entertainment business will be held May 26-30. Later in the summer, from July 7 through 10, A "Shawnee Yankee Greats" tournament will be held, a tournament which will feature great New York Yankees players from the past and give those who golf now memories of the Bronx Bombers as they were then.

The world-renowned Fred Waring Four Ball is scheduled for August 18 through 24 and the Fred Waring Junior tournament will be held August 24 through 27.

The Fall Festival Pro-Am Tournament will be held October 13 through 17.

Shawnee also recently held its first in what is planned to be an annual event with a Golf Writers Party. Mike Aronstein of Golf Magazine won the first title with a low gross 75, while Jimmy Calpin of The Scrantonian-Scranton Tribune, Des Tolhurst of Golf Magazine and Dale Shankland, also of Golf Magazine, split the first low gross title.

A total of 28 writers took part in the first annual affair.

Mountain Manor

MARSHALLS CREEK — Mountain Manor Golf Club again has a lengthy tournament schedule planned for the 1975 golf season.

On June 1, a Blind Partners Tournament with action for both men and women will be held. On Sunday, June 22, the men's member-guest tournament is scheduled.

Flight playoffs for both men and women begin June 28. On Saturday, July 5, a nine-hole, Five-Iron and Putter Tournament is scheduled on the club's Orange Course. Husband and wife or female members will be teamed together.

On July 27, a flag tournament with men's and women's divisions will be held. On August 24 for both men and women, the President's Cup Tournament is on the agenda, while the end of the month, August 31, also brings the end of the flight play-offs.

On Saturday, Sept. 6, the men's championship gets underway at 8 a.m. with the first of two championship rounds. The women get underway in championship play at 1 p.m. Both times also prevail for the second round Sunday.

On Sept. 14, the four-ball point tournament is scheduled for both men and women.

In October, the fifth of the month brings the four-ball scramble tournament, again for men and women. The "No Alibi Tournament" is scheduled for Oct. 19, with men's and women's divisions.

The annual banquet and awards ceremony is scheduled for Nov. 8, a Saturday evening.

Evergreen Park

ANALOMINK — Evergreen Park Golf Course is growing and going places.

The challenging nine-hole layout is currently polling its membership to determine its tournament schedule, but the club has gone ahead with plans to begin competition Tuesday in a women's golf league open to the public.

The league will hold tournaments every Tuesday at 1 p.m. and further information may

Golf gloves need consideration, too

STROUDSBURG — Many golfers concern themselves with how they look before stepping on a golf course. Shoes, pants and shirt have to look just right and blend in perfectly.

But there is another item important to a lot of golfers that sometimes those watching tournament on television don't get to see that much of: the golf glove.

Prices for golf gloves can range anywhere from $5 to $10 and perhaps even more, but it doesn't necessarily mean you are getting a better quality glove for the money you lay out.

In fact, as the price for a glove goes up, the glove gets thinner. But that means for the top price you pay you get a glove which is thinner and thus allows you to better feel the grip of your clubs, which means a lot to some golfers.

Gloves used range from the glove which covers the entire hand to one which just takes care of the palm and the lower third of the fingers. Some gloves snap into place at the wrist but the more popular method now used for fastening gloves is a Velcro closure, two strips of tacky material that lock together tightly and keep the glove snugly on the hand.

But the glove that is thinner usually will not last as long as the thick ones. But the price you pay for the thin one guarantees, possibly, that the feel you have for the club will now be worth it.

Buy more than one glove at a time and alternate them, letting each dry out and come completely back into shape and thus last longer. Gloves worn time after time tend to wear out very quickly.

Don't wear a new glove in the rain. If you don't mind playing in the rain, use an old glove because a new one will feel the affects of the weather. Gloves have also been seen protruding from the pockets of golfers while they putt.

Tamiment tourney honors former assistant DeSanto be obtained by calling the pro shop.

Evergreen is a challenging little course, demanding accuracy off the tee if the player is to score well. As with most players' golf course, Evergreen rewards good shots with good scores. The course plays to a par 36 and measures 3,125 yards.

Tamiment

TAMIMENT — A pair of pro-amateur tournaments highlight the slate of activities at Tamiment this season.

The season's first big tournament will be the Angelo DeSanto Memorial, in honor of a former assistant pro at Tamiment. A date has yet to be set for the tournament, but it is tentatively scheduled for early June.

The season's second big tournament, the $1,000 added

Danny Kaye Invitational, will take place September 2, 3 and 4.

Indian Mountain

KRESGEVILLE — Golfers at the Indian Mountain Course in Kresgeville will notice two improvements to the course for the 1975 season.

A practice putting green has been built to accommodate golfers who want to sharpen their putting skills. The course has also resodded all tees.

Six teams are currently competing in Indian Mountain's Monday night twilight league. The teams tee off every Monday and record their records for a 15-week period.

Indian Mountain is a nine-hole, par-36, 3,200-yard public course.

Mo-Nom-O-Nock

MOUNTAINHOME — Ten gas-powered carts are the new feature at Mo-Nom-O-Nock Inn this season. The carts replace the electric carts used last season.

Mo-Nom-O-Nock's nine-hole, par 33 course is 3,100 yards and open to the public.

Sheraton-Picasso

WHITE HAVEN — The Sheraton-Picasso Inn in White Haven has scheduled a series of small weekly tournaments, which are open to the public.

More information about the tournaments can be obtained by calling the pro shop at 443-8411.

Two other larger pro-amateur events are also on the scheduled. The Schaefer Celebrity tournament, which is held as part of the Schaefer 500 Festival, is set for June 23.

The Tannery Open is scheduled for September 23.

Bethany Colony

HONESDALE — Bethany Colony is now under new ownership, but present plans include keeping the golf course open to the public.

Bethany Colony is a nine-hole, par-31, 1,993-yard layout.

Cherry Valley CC

STROUDSBURG — Cherry Valley, one of the newer 18-hole courses in the Pocono Mountains area, has made a few changes in its facilities for the opening of the 1975 golf season.

A spokesman at the club said the addition of a new picnic pavilion and the addition of 20 new electric golf carts to its fleet were the only major changes undertaken thus far.

Cherry Valley Country Club is a 5,520-yard, par-71 layout situated on Cherry Valley Road, two miles west of Delaware Water Gap.

Highland Inn Open at Buck Hill Sunday

BUCK HILL, FALLS — Buck Hill Golf Club will again host the annual Highland Inn Spring Golf Tournament Sunday, with a field of 144 golfers expected to compete in the tournament.

The event, in its fifth year at Buck Hill, will be played in a better-ball-of-partners format.

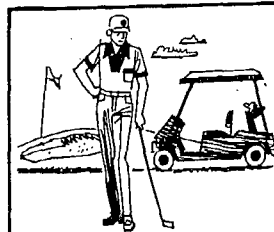

Included in the tournament are greens fees, carts, a buffet dinner, beer and the opportunity to compete for more than $900 in door prizes. Each contestant will receive a complimentary door prize prior to teeing off.

The tournament will begin at 12:30 p.m. with a shotgun start. Net scores will be determined by using a modified Cal-loway system. Following the completion of play, all contestants will leave for Buck Hill's West Lounge for the buffet dinner and presentation of trophies and awards.

Tony Cebula, owner of the Highland Inn, will again oversee all activities of the tournament.

Steve Pembroke, golf professional at Buck Hill, will be in charge of all activities concerning play of the tournament itself. Pembroke will be aided by assistants Vinnie Ciarlone and Dirk Zondag.

Warriors gain invitation to compete in tournament

EAST STROUDSBURG — For the first time in more than ten years, the East Stroudsburg State College golf team has been invited to participate in a post-season tournament.

The Warriors will compete in the Pennsylvania trials for the NCAA Division-II Golf Championships Tuesday and Wednesday on the Belles Springs Golf Course in Lock Haven.

Four teams will be battling for one or two berths in the national tournament scheduled June 10-13 at the University of Tennessee at Martin.

The ESSC team earned its chance at the nationals by finishing fourth of 12 schools in the Pennsylvania Conference Golf Championships earlier this month.

The Warriors have four area players on the squad headed by junior Keith Wilson of Pen Argyl. The others are junior Craig Potcher of Stroudsburg, senior Tom Robb of Pocono Pines and sophomore Fred Whitmore of Stroudsburg.

Wilson was named the school's outstanding golfer and received a plaque at the recent Varsity 'S' Club Athletic Awards Banquet. He also won the award in 1973.

The former PIAA District 11 champion for Pen Argyl High School was the team's low scorer with a 79.7 average. This included many rounds played in early April under wintry weather conditions.

He tied for fourth in the conference tourney with a final-round 73 for a total of 153. He was the team's medalist in five of the 11 matches.

Potcher got the Warriors started on a winning season as his 76 took medalist honors and led a double win over Montclair State and William Paterson.

The three-year regular was a former Lehigh Valley League second flight champion for Stroudsburg High School.

Robb transferred to ESSC from Wabash College. He immediately made his presence felt as he was the low scorer during the fall season.

He was the team's medalist in the first round of the Pennsylvania Conference tournament with a 78 but slipped to an 83 for a total of 161. He played three years of golf at Pocono Mountain High School.

Whitmore also was a medalist in one of the team's victories with a 75 against Wilkes. He was a newcomer to the varsity squad.

The Bangor High School graduate now has earned varsity letters in two different sports at ESSC, football in which he played halfback and golf.

The other members of the varsity, which posted a 7-6 record, are freshmen Jim Springer and Darryl Beltz and senior Bob Henning. Springer was medalist three times with a low score of 75.

The Warriors last attended a post-season tournament in the early 1960s under Coach Mort Hockheiser who had undefeated squads in 1961, 1963 and 1964.

Skiing helps Ted Johnson teach golf

By JOE DEVIVO
Record Sports Writer

POCONO MANOR — Skiing and golf are two sports which have very little in common. Yet Ted Johnson believes his work as a ski instructor improves his ability to teach golf.

Johnson, the new head golf pro at Pocono Manor, is firmly convinced his winters are well-spent as the assistant ski school director at Camelback.

"I think skiing makes a better golf pro out of me," Johnson said. "Golf takes a lot of time with your members and in order to do a good job it's better if you can get away from it for a period of time."

"Every year the 15th of November comes around and I look forward to skiing with great enthusiasm," Johnson continued. "By the first of April I have great enthusiasm for golf again."

"If I was in golf for 12 months I think I'd lose my edge," he stated. "I don't think I'd be near the effective golf pro I am now."

Johnson also feels teaching people to ski is the easier of his two instructional tasks.

"I've never met someone who couldn't learn to ski," Johnson said. "Once you overcome the fear it all falls in place."

Golf instruction is much more difficult, he claims.

"Golf is almost a science," he explained, "where skiing is a sport. There are only about 50 really outstanding golfers in the world today out of thousands. There's plenty of good skiers."

Johnson, who served as the head pro at Pocono Farms for five years, has a tough act to follow in his new duties as Pocono Manor's new head pro.

Jack Cuttle retired last season after 50 years at Pocono Manor and Johnson realizes it's going to be hard to fill Cuttle's shoes. But he also guarantees the tradition of fine golfing at Pocono Manor won't change.

"There'll be no physical changes to the two courses primarily because of Pocono Manor's "history," Johnson said. "There are some world-famous holes here."

Two of the outstanding challenges to any golfer are the 77-yard "drop" hole, where the green is almost directly below the golfer, and the "punch bowl", where three hills surround the green.

"We don't intend to change what Pocono Manor is to the public," Johnson said.

That's not to say Johnson is opposed to change. He has updated and rearranged the pro shop to include more complete lines of clubs and golfwear, and has completely refurbished the bag storage room.

'Bicentennial' tourney at IVB?

PHILADELPHIA — If sponsors of the Philadelphia-IVB Golf Classic have their way, a tournament celebrating the Bicentennial Year of 1976 will be held at the site of the upcoming IVB tournament, White-marsh Valley Country Club.

Plans presented to the Tournament Players Division (TPD) officials, which plan such tournaments, include a possible purse of $200,000 or $250,000 and possible status as a designated tournament, which would guarantee the field.

Guaranteeing the field would mean that players of top stature, such as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Johnny Miller, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and the other top names which are featured on the professional golf tour.

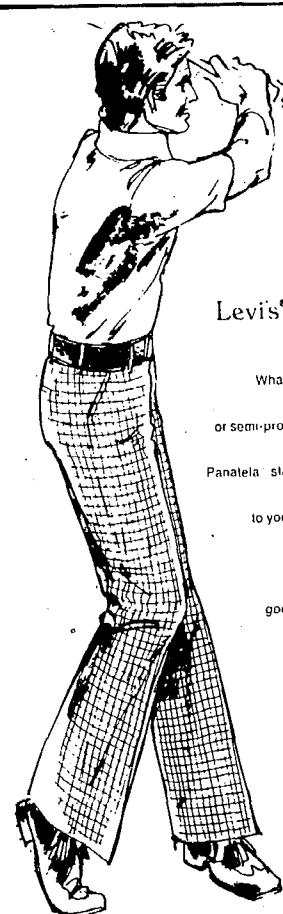

"I think we should have a tournament that is in keeping with the Bicentennial Celebration," said Nelson Harris, chairman of the IVB. "I can think of nothing better than to have a tournament of major stature to help celebrate our 200th anniversary as a nation."

Harris said the date of July 4 would be an ideal one for obvious reasons, but the TPD handles dates and such an announcement on date for the 1976 tour has not yet been made.

Harris said a probable name for the tournament would be the IVB Bicentennial Tournament and he hopes an agreement could be reached for national television coverage of the proposed tournament.

Philadelphia will also serve as the site of the National Basketball Association all-star game, major league baseball all-star game and National Hockey League all-star contest in 1976.

Honesdale pro Art Wall again to compete in IVB

WHITEMARSH — Art Wall, Jr., will again play in the IVB Golf Classic, June 9-15, at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

No longer a regular on the PGA tour, the 41-year-old native of Honesdale still earned $19,308 last year. His best finish was a tie for 15th place at the Kemper Open, a week before the IVB Classic. At Whitemarsh he shot a two-over-par 290.

He later teamed with Roy Pace to finish in a tie for 10th place, only four shots behind winners Hubert Green and Mac McLendon, at the Disney World National Team Championship.

Wall's top season on the pro tour was 1959 when he won four tournaments, including the Masters. He was the leading money winner that year ($53,167), as well as the PGA Player-of-the-year and winner of the Vardon Trophy for averaging 70.35 strokes for every 18 holes of golf he played.

His first professional victory came in 1953 at the Fort Wayne Open. He won the second Tournament of Champions in 1954 and the 1960 Canadian Open. His last PGA tourney win was at the 1966 Insurance City Open. That year Wall also won eight events on the Caribbean Tour.

Wall, a graduate of Duke University, still resides in Honesdale with wife Jean and their five children.

Weiskopf enters

WHITEMARSH — Tom Weiskopf, winner of the IVB Golf Classic in 1971 and 1973, will return to the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club for this year's 13th annual tournament, June 9-15.

The 32-year-old native of Massillon, Ohio was prompted to say, "I feel like I'm in a kind of a recession," earlier this season when he missed the cut in three of his first five tournaments, and earned only $14,017 through the PGA's West Coast swing in January and February. But since the tour returned to the East, he has been one of the hottest players going.

Five tournaments after the tour moved to Florida, Weiskopf's

Johnson's biggest weakness, by his own admission, is his ability as a shopkeeper. But he makes up for that with an extra effort at teaching the sport.

"Anybody can be a shopkeeper," Johnson said. "I'm not really involved so much in the business end of it. If I do anything well in golf, it's as a teacher. I'm really involved in the teaching end of golf and the enthusiasm you must give the amateur."

In addition to creating enthusiasm, Johnson tries to stress that golf should be a fun sport.

"If everybody approached the game of golf with fun in mind they would enjoy themselves," Johnson said. "The next shot they hit is not the most important thing in their life."

"It's just one of thousands of golf shots," he continued. "If it's a mishit, you can forget it and go on to the next one."

Johnson began his career in golf as an amateur while serving as an Air Force fighter pilot. During his 20-year stint in the service, Johnson had ample opportunity to participate in various amateur tournaments around the world.

He once competed in the British Amateur and bowed to Gordon Clark, the eventual winner. Johnson once reached the semi-finals of the Portuguese Amateur championships and the quarterfinals of the Italian Amateur championships.

earnings for the year had reached $46,204. He then picked up $40,000 for winning the Greater Greensboro Open, and finished one stroke behind Jack Nicklaus at the Masters, after leading after the second and third rounds.

"I'll win it (the Masters) yet," he promised after an eight-foot putt for a tie with Nicklaus rolled past the cup on the 18th hole. "I know I'm going to win this tournament. It's just a matter of time. And when I do, I want a tailor-made jacket." Obviously, Tom Weiskopf is out of his recession.

The victory at Greensboro one week before the Masters was his first since the 1973 Canadian Open. His best showings in 1974 were second place finishes at the Pleasant Valley Classic and the Western Open. He was fifth a year ago at Whitmarsh.

Weiskopf earned $127,529 in 1974, a big drop off his best year, 1973, when he finished third on the earnings list with $245,463 and had four first places on the U.S. Tour. That year he also won the British Open, the South African PGA and the World Series of Golf, and was a member of the American Ryder Cup team.

At one time during that season he had a streak of five victories in eight tournaments, shooting 20 of 40 rounds in the 60's during that time.

The highlights of his 1974 season came when he finished third at the Westchester Classic. His earnings there put his lifetime total over $1,000,000, the eighth man to do so in PGA history. Weiskopf took exactly ten years and two weeks from the time he earned his first professional money to his first million.

At Whitmarsh last year he shot 279, eight strokes behind record-setting winner Hubert Green. He picked up $6,150. He needed 274 shots both years that he won the IVB-Golf Classic.

Who completes the money list?

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sure, you know who the top money winners are in professional golf. Their names are spoken every week. But what about the guys at the bottom of the top 100?

Johnny Miller leads Jack Nicklaus by a few bucks for the top position, but did you know that Doug Sanders is 100th out of the top 100? Mr. Lavender himself has won $7,287 this year after missing some time with a bad wrist. A bad wrist is disaster for a guy who could swing in a telephone booth.

A golfer like Tom Weiskopf is near the top, but someone like Bob Goalby, a former Masters' champion who won in 1968 on the famed scorecard error that cost Roberto DeVincenzo, has won just $7,435 this year. And Bob Charles, a former British Open winner, has taken in just $7,720. But, on the other hand, those who were low on the list before are near the top now.
